London Undergoes War's Most Severe Pounding

Stukas German Attack 'Blitz' Capital Halted

Hundreds Of Planes Hurl Explosives On Britain's Metropolis

By Merrill Mueller
LONDON, April 17—Hundreds of German raiders, including Stuka dive-bombers, gave London its worst pounding of the war last night and early today in an eight-hour blitz attack that killed and injured uncounted civilians.

While thousands of incendiaries and ton on ton of high explosive bombs rained on the British capital, RAF bombers hammered naval and industrial targets in northwestern Germany.

Air Ministry officials revealed that five of the German night raiders were shot down.

One of the German bombers crashed in flames near Kensington High Street in central London. Another crashed at Wimbledon, Britain's tennis capital.

The prolonged Nazi attack, which marked the first use of Stuka dive-bombers against the British capital, was generally conceded the worst of the war.

Experienced observers agreed that it equaled in intensity the heaviest German attacks of last September.

Eight Hospitals Burn

Among the targets hit were eight London hospitals—one a maternity hospital and another a mental institution—all of which were set on fire.

Bombs also struck a church and a town hall.

One high explosive fell into a suburban garden, wiping out a family of eight taking refuge in their Anderson shelter.

The Air Ministry communique describing the Nazi assault said: "The enemy carried out an extremely heavy and sustained attack on London, which began shortly after dark and lasted throughout the night until shortly before dawn."

"Early reports show casualties were very heavy and that there was considerable damage."

"Bombs were dropped outside London, mainly on the home and southeastern counties, but nowhere in these areas were casualties large or damage extensive."

This correspondent was among the minor casualties.

While covering the hottest part of the raid I was trapped in a street when a high explosive bomb burst nearby. The concussion flung me back against a stone wall, filling my eyes with glass splinters and bits of gravel and stone.

Someone rushed me to a casualty station where I was given emergency treatment and then permitted to return to work.

The attack was by far the worst I ever have experienced, and I have seen virtually all of London's raids.

Greeks Say Lines In North Break Up Attacks By Reich

ATHENS, April 17—British-Greek allied forces on the northern front today smashed successive heavy German assaults aimed at breaking the center of the Allied line as fury of the battle of northern Greece mounted to heights hitherto unequalled in Balkan warfare.

Between Gravena and Kalambka, German troops launched one assault after another, each in turn recoiling from deadly fire concentrated on the attacking ranks by the Allied defenders, military advice reaching Athens said.

"Extreme violence" was the phrase used in reports to Athens to describe the intensification of assault and defense efforts by enemy and Allied troops, indicating that the German breakthrough attempts were increasing beyond all previous combat experience in northern Greece.

No Breaks Made

Despite the violent and sustained assaults, however, the defense line was said to be holding firm, with no gap yet pierced that would permit a southeastern surge of the highly mobile Panzer units.

The repeated German thrusts at the Allied defense lines followed earlier attacks in western Macedonia into the upper valley of the Haliakmon (Krivitsa) River.

Earlier, after striking deep into the former Anglo-Greek defenses, German forces fought furiously in the Grevena region in a mighty effort to capture the strategic railroad at Kalabaka.

Surprise On Adolf's Birthday Hoped For

BERLIN, April 17—Capturing prisoners "everywhere," German forces are advancing on all fronts in Greece, the German high command announced today.

Details of the latest fighting in the crucial battle were withheld today in accordance with the German custom of keeping precise information secret until a specific engagement has ended. But authoritative German quarters expressed hope they would be able to spring a new surprise on the world before Chancellor Hitler's birthday observance on Sunday.

Two possibilities were mentioned:

1—"Annihilation" of the British forces in the region of Mt. Olympus.

2—A fatal smash at the heart of the Greek army.

Meanwhile, authoritative quarters said that the first stages of the furious battle now in progress in Greece foreshadow an "inevitable" German victory.

One responsible spokesman said:

"Everything is developing according to plan."

"We are more than satisfied with the manner in which things in Greece are shaping up."

Task Not Easy One

It was admitted, however, that the task of smashing up the Greek and British defenses in Greece will not prove as easy as breaking Yugoslavia's resistance, partly because of the natural mountain fortification and strongholds in Greece.

On the other hand, it was contended, the hardest part of the task was completed in Macedonia and at Salonika, "which nevertheless was speedily conquered."

The fighting still in progress in Yugoslavia was authoritatively characterized as merely a "major police action."

HEAVY RAINFALL HELPS DISTRICT; 'MERC' TO FALL

Nearly half an inch of rain Wednesday night brightened Circleville lawns and Pickaway County pastures and wheatfields and brought the total rainfall for April to 2.23 inches.

Wednesday night's shower was the best the community had received since last Thursday night, when .7 inches poured down in slightly over an hour.

Total precipitation this spring, however, still is below normal, and considerably under that of this time last year when the Scioto River was in flood stage, and flood waters were pouring across Pickaway County roads and bottom lands.

Temperatures Wednesday climbed above eighty again, with the official reading at 81. Low Thursday was 56. Friday's weather will be cooler, according to the weatherman.

STEEL TO FIGHT FEDERAL PRICE SCALE IN COURT

WASHINGTON, April 17—The steel industry has decided to contest in court the order of Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson which froze steel prices at the 1941 first quarter level, it was learned today.

Officials of the industry, it was said, are canvassing the steel companies in an attempt to find one preferably a small one—that will file a test case in court.

Meanwhile, most of the major steel companies were expected to seek exemption from Henderson's order.

British Jubilant After Destroying Eight Ships In Italian Supply Fleet

LONDON, April 17—British naval circles were jubilant today over Britain's newest Mediterranean Sea triumph—"annihilation" of an Italian convoy of five transports and three escorting destroyers.

They declared this victory—in which not a single Fascist vessel escaped—spelled serious trouble for axis efforts to supply the Italo-German troops now threatening Egypt and the Suez Canal.

The eight Italian ships were sunk between Sicily and Tripoli at the cost of but one British naval unit, the 1,870-ton destroyer Mohawk, which was torpedoed and sunk.

In addition to this success, London circles learned with elation that British naval units had shelled the land communications of the axis forces now operating around Solum in Egypt.

HIGHWAY PATROL CHIEF OPPOSES ANGLE PARKING

Col. Lynn Black Informs Council Committee To Retain Parallel

REPORT BEING HELD UP

Federal Suggestions May Decide Uptown Question For City Officials

Council's safety committee Wednesday night asked "further time" to consider the city's parking problem, maintaining it was awaiting information from the federal government on a parking system for Court and Main Streets.

A letter from Col. Lynn Black, head of the Ohio State Highway Patrol, who was contacted by the committee concerning the city's parking problem, urged the city to keep its system of parallel parking. "The highway department is opposed to any system of parking other than parallel," Col. Black said.

With Routes 22 and 23 designated as federal military highways, to be used for the transportation of troops and mechanized equipment, the federal government will require free right-of-way through the city. Army trucks and units, which will travel about 25 miles an hour, will not be expected to slow down at city limits for congested streets or traffic lights, police officers have been notified.

Although the committee has received no definite information from army headquarters, it is generally reported the government will oppose any angle parking system greater than 20 degrees.

In conjunction with the army's mobilization plan, local police officers have worked out a patrol system to clear city streets in a few minutes time.

Three strokes of the fire bell at five minute intervals will be the signal for owners of cars parked on Court or Main Streets to remove their cars immediately. Members of the American Legion will cooperate with the police department in directing traffic to side streets when army units are passing through the city.

COUNTY GIVEN $3,772 FOR RELIEF IN MARCH

A relief check for $3,772 for March has been allocated for Pickaway County.

Relief in Ohio in March cost $1,807,188.

March expenditures brought the first quarter's total to $5,589,220, a decrease of $1,765,756 below the like period of 1940. For the next eight months, the state will provide a maximum of $675,000 monthly, Sherwood said.

Trial Of Manslaughter Case May End Thursday

Trial of Andrew Mack Wright, Dayton motorist, charged with second degree manslaughter, was being continued Thursday with a report from court officials that the case would be finished sometime late in the day.

After a jury of eight men and four women had been selected and sworn Wednesday, State's Counsels Joe Adkins and Prosecutor George Gerhardt began prosecution and by Wednesday night all but one of the state's witnesses had been questioned.

During Wednesday's session the jury viewed the scene of the accident on Route 56 one mile east of Circleville, where the Wright car crashed with the one in which Miss Catherine Stapleton and Millard Campbell were traveling, bringing injuries which resulted in the death of both Miss Stapleton and Campbell.

NORTHERN COAL WORKERS AGREE ON WAGE BOOST

By International News Service
Bringing hope for the settlement of the 17-day-old work stoppage in the soft coal mines of 12 states, which has left more than 400,000 workers idle, the northern coal operators reached an agreement on a new two-year contract with the CIO's United Mine Workers.

Signing of the contract, which will send the men back into the mines of the bituminous field, the backbone of the National Defense industries, will be put off for a few days in a final effort to line up the southern operators who bolted the negotiations last Friday.

If the northern miners sign with the CIO it would mean that at least 250,000 workers would return to the pits. John L. Lewis, president of the UAW, has indicated however that his giant union would not sign until an agreement also is worked out for the southern miners.

BOLD IRISHMAN INJURES SELF, IS OUT OF DERBY

NEW YORK, April 17—Bold Irishman, one of the Wheatley stable horses that has been given a big play in the Kentucky Derby future books will not start in the derby, May 3, it became known today.

The horse injured itself in his stall and Trainer James "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons has been working him lightly since the mishap. Fitzsimmons, it was said, does not want to urge him on too rapidly and is convinced Bold Irishman will not be ready at least until the Preakness at Pimlico which is a week later than the Derby.

10 LEAVE FOR CAMP

Edgar Ross Clark, Circleville, was made leader of the contingent of ten men which left for Fort Hayes, Columbus, Thursday morning. The contingent of five volunteers and five draftees replaces men rejected by the state draft headquarters on March 15.

CIO MEN START MASS LOBBYING IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, April 17—More than 1,200 steel workers, nine workers and other representatives of CIO unions from all parts of Ohio today moved on the state house in the largest mass lobbying movement of the present session of the legislature.

Under the direction of Ted S. Silvey, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Industrial Union Council, CIO, the delegates displaying badges, filled corridors and surged in and out of committee rooms, contacting legislators with demands for immediate enactment of pending bills to liberalize unemployment insurance benefits.

During Thursday's session, photographs showing the position of the wrecked cars and the tire marks made on the highway were presented to jurors. The partly empty bottle of wine, found in Wright's car by sheriff's officers, also was produced.

In his testimony Wright did not admit the tire marks in the photographs were those of his own car. He denied that he knew how the bottle of wine got in his car, although he admitted he had had a drink of "about three-eighths ounce of wine and two or three beers."

In cross-examination Wright admitted his car was on the wrong side of the highway when it collided with the Campbell car, but testified that Campbell, coming into Circleville, was on the wrong side of the road, and that to avoid a collision, he had pulled his own car to the left side of the highway.

TWO NATIONS IN AXIS SCOPE ASK YUGOSLAV AREA

BUDAPEST, April 17—Romanian and Hungarian newspapers plunged into an embittered debate today over the Yugoslavian territory recently occupied by Hungarian troops.

The argument waxed hot as the nations of the Balkan peninsula began a scramble for slices of defeated Yugoslavia, where, according to German claims, no political or military authority now exists.

Editor's Note: Reports circulated in Berlin today that Romanian troops have been ordered to seize the Banat region of north-eastern Yugoslavia, which formerly belonged to Romania.

F. D. R. DENIES ARMED AID GIVEN TO BRITISH

Navy and Coast Guard at present are giving armed escort to munition-laden British merchantmen leaving Atlantic ports for Europe.

Lowering Of Exemptions On Incomes Possible; Other Fields Studied

WASHINGTON, April 17—With the announced policy of taxing "people who haven't paid anything up to this time," the administration today submitted a new revenue program to congressional leaders calling for a $3,500,000,000 increase in federal levies.

WASHINGTON, April 17—Sentiment for a tax bill of at least $3,000,000,000, raising some classes of taxes beyond the World War level, was indicated in congress today as treasury officials and congressional tax leaders planned to consider the question.

In spite of soaring business and increased tax revenues, such a yield would be necessary to place the United States on a basis of paying two-thirds of its expenses out of taxes and one-third out of borrowed money, some members contended.

Tax yields may rise to $10,000,000,000 this year, shattering all previous records, as the result of stimulation of business by the defense program. Expenditures have been estimated from $18,000,000,000 to $23,000,000,000.

Rep. Doughton (D) N. C., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Sen. George (D) Ga., acting chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and a group of members of both committees were to confer with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and tax experts. In an effort to place tax legislation on a non-partisan basis, Doughton and George invited Republicans to participate.

Need May Be Great

While many high administration officials have talked of a tax bill of $1,500,000,000, it appeared highly probable that congress might demand levying of a greater sum.

Strong opposition was voiced to entering new fields of taxation, such as "enforced savings," payroll and general sales taxes.

"I think that in the main we are going to have to follow the general picture of present taxation," said George. "If we get into new fields we might have a right smart controversy."

FARM EXPERTS SEEK TO BOOST VITAMIN OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, April 17—Administration farm officials are drafting programs to increase production of more high vitamin foods—mostly vegetables—for both domestic needs and aid to Great Britain and other nations under this government's $7,000,000,000 aid to democracies program it was learned today.

Agriculture department sources emphasized that the move was a further step beyond a program announced April 3 to "peg" the prices of poultry, pork, eggs and dairy products to increase production by stabilizing prices and assuring levels "remunerative to producers."

Under the new program, it was learned, expanded production will be sought for certain vegetables—most likely tomatoes, dried beans, potatoes, carrots, peas and other canned foods. It was expected that some formal announcement would be forthcoming today with respect to at least one of the commodities.

While many high administration officials have talked of a tax bill of $1,500,000,000, it appeared highly probable that congress might demand levying of a greater sum.

Strong opposition was voiced to entering new fields of taxation, such as "enforced savings," payroll and general sales taxes.

FARM EXPERTS SEEK TO BOOST VITAMIN OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, April 17—Administration farm officials are drafting programs to increase production of more high vitamin foods—mostly vegetables—for both domestic needs and aid to Great Britain and other nations under this government's $7,000,000,000 aid to democracies program it was learned today.

Agriculture department sources emphasized that the move was a further step beyond a program announced April 3 to "peg" the prices of poultry, pork, eggs and dairy products to increase production by stabilizing prices and assuring levels "remunerative to producers."

Under the new program, it was learned, expanded production will be sought for certain vegetables—most likely tomatoes, dried beans, potatoes, carrots, peas and other canned foods. It was expected that some formal announcement would be forthcoming today with respect to at least one of the commodities.

SENATE WEIGHS BILL TO ASSIST STATE CANNERS

House Passes Act To Exempt Plants From Provisions Of Ohio Eight-Hour Law

MAY LOWER AGE LIMIT

Opposition Says Plan First Step To Turn Back Labor Progress In Nation

Ohio cannery interests Thursday were victorious in the first step of their legislative battle to exempt women workers from the state's eight-hour law and to lower the age limit fixed by the child labor law.

A bill, passed by the House and sent to the Senate, would permit the canneries, during the season for canning corn, tomatoes, peas and other perishables, to employ women more than eight hours a day and would open the way for employment of girls of from 18 to 21 years, heretofore prohibited. The legislation was hailed by proponents as a boon to farmers and the canning industry, both of whom suffer seasonal losses when crops ripen more quickly than they can be canned, and as a contribution to the federal government's drive to make the nation the "storehouse of democracy."

It was bitterly assailed on the floor of the House in the course of lengthy debate as the beginning of a move to destroy the maximum hours law protecting women in certain specified industries, of which canning is one on the prescribed list.

Huron Man Voices Plea

Rep. Frank H. Pierce (R-Huron), author of the legislation, appealed for its passage in a speech in which he argued it would enable Ohio to contribute its share of the millions of cases of canned foodstuffs destined for France and other stricken nations abroad. Referring to the mercy ships, he said: "There is an old Chinese proverb, 'A journey of a thousand miles begins with the first step. We are now starting a journey of 3,000 miles.'"

To which Rep. Jacob Clayman (D-Trumbull), retorted, "It is a first step in turning back 50 years all of our legislative progress in protecting women and children in industry."

Clayman stated that representatives of the match-making and other industries have approached members of the House labor committee with overtures for legislation to exempt women workers from the hours law, and labelled the bill the "opening wedge" of a general movement to tear it down.

The Pierce amendment containing the canneries provision was attached to a bill by Rep. Jackson E. Betts (R-Hancock), originally intended to permit telephone, telegraph and radio companies to employ women during the year-end holiday season more than eight hours in any 24-hour period, provided there is a 10-hour rest period between shifts. The bill passed by a vote of 72 to 40.

The Senate passed a bill by Sen. O. E. Whitacre (D-Minerva), to give the state board of barber examiners jurisdiction to fix prices and hours of operation of barbers of Ohio by districts, and to investigate trade practices. Sen. Whitacre, himself a former barber, said the bill had the support of the journeymen barbers of the state, and was designed to eliminate unfair competition by establishing minimum prices in given areas. The measure passed by a vote of 28 to 4 and was sent to the House.

To Study School Law

The Senate also passed the Tarr-Cramer House bill providing for a commission to make a complete overhaul of Ohio's public school laws and to report its findings to the next General Assembly. The Senate amended the measure to provide for 11 instead of nine members, including four senators, four representatives and three persons to be named by the governor. Another Senate amendment substituted Senator Frank E. Whittemore (R-Akron), majority floor leader, for Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert as the appointive power under the bill in the upper chamber. The measure passed by a vote of 28-5 and goes back to the House for concurrence in the amendments.

The House yesterday passed a Senate bill to reorganize the state welfare department into four major divisions: business administration, corrections, mental diseases and social administration. The bill was designed to enable the department to cope with the state's growing welfare needs, and the four divisions were recently established by executive order. It provides for no personnel increases.

At the same time the Senate passed a bill to create a division of mental diseases within the welfare department, to broaden the authority of the institutional superintendent and to classify Hawthornes as a state institution. Sen. Pliny H. Rogers (R-Lorain), authored both measures.

An indication that the Legislature is drawing to a close of the present session came yesterday when Rep. Paul H. Ballard (R-Jackson), chairman of the House finance committee, introduced in the House a $350,872 sundry claims appropriations bill. This usually is one of the last items disposed of by the General Assembly prior to adjournment.

BRICKER HOLDS FATE OF WILMINGTON NEGRO

COLUMBUS, April 17—Governor Bricker today will decide whether Joseph Curl, 52, Negro, of Wilmington, O., must die as scheduled in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary tomorrow.

Curl twice convicted as a slayer, was branded "a killer and exceedingly dangerous," and a man who "has a most terrible temper, particularly when he has been drinking," by Clinton County Prosecutor G. L. Schilling, who yesterday objected to a commutation of sentence before the Ohio pardon and parole commission.

Curl was sentenced to die for the murder of Wilbur Baber at Wilmington last October 13. He was convicted of another slaying in Greene County in 1912, sentenced to a life term, and pardoned by former Gov. James M. Cox in 1917.

She's Accused

ARRESTED by police in Dallas, Tex., on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Blanche Woodall, former night club dancer, Mrs. Juanita Barr, above, wife of a Dallas newspaper columnist, was at liberty under $25,000 bond. The husband of the accused woman told police he and his wife had separated a week ago.

BIG LEVY MADE ON S. CENTRAL RURAL ELECTRIC

Holding that in effect that non-profit co-operative utility companies are not entitled to special consideration, the state board of tax appeals, Columbus, had ruled Thursday that the proper assessment for the South Central Rural Electric Co-operative, Inc., for 1939 was $348,720.

The company had contended that earnings were an element in property valuation, and that the assessment should have been about $207,000, or half the book value of assets.

The firm, with headquarters at Lancaster, operates in Fairfield, Franklin, Licking, Pickaway, Muskingum, Perry and Ross counties.

There will be grim planting this spring.

Splendid Entertainment Offered For Children

The Bundles for Britain unit of Circleville, headed by Mrs. C. G. Shulze, is bringing the "Alice in Wonderland" unit of the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre of New York to Circleville's Cliftona Theatre next Thursday in an effort to bring to boys and girls a happy release from the usual day by day influences being developed by the world's strife.

"Between a world torn by economic strife and war and the children of America, the Children's Theatre stands as a bulwark," said Mrs. Shulze.

"The Bundles for Britain unit in bringing the Clare Tree Major production to Circleville in its gay and imaginative production of childhood's favorite is doing so in the knowledge that this type of entertainment creates a wholesome, inspiring influence on youthful minds now too much impressed by stark reality," she continued.

The chairman continued by saying:

"Parents just now are naturally worried and heartsick over national and world affairs." "In this state of mind they cannot help but pass on many of these feelings to their children, who themselves are depressed and not a little bewildered."

"The minds of our children need to be protected from the constant shock of world events. They should be protected against accepting conditions as they now exist and be enabled to see beyond the terrible things that are happening so that they can realize there are many fine things possible in life for them. Nothing is more tragic than a stunted childhood, the carelessness of youthful dreams and aspirations."

"In Europe the lives of millions of children have been blasted. In America, during this difficult period, we must see to it that our children receive proper guidance. Clare Tree Major, years ago foresaw this need, and provided her Children's Theatre as one of the answers."

Mrs. Shulze pointed out that Mrs. Major, founder and director of the Children's Theatre, enlarged its field of operation during the depression years because she recognized the added need for youthful inspiration. The public response from parents, educators and chil-

COUNCIL OKES CADY'S CHOICES FOR PARK BOARD

Seven Member Commission To Be In Charge Of Recreation Area

SUPERVISOR TO BE PAID City Considers Providing Part Of Salary For NYA Official

City Council, Wednesday night, confirmed Mayor William B. Cady's appointment of seven members to the City Park Commission and voted to consider providing at least a portion of the salary of a park supervisor.

Harry Bartholomew, chairman of the Park Commission, told members of Council that payment of the supervisor's salary from funds solicited for the north-end recreation center, was rapidly draining funds which should be used for park construction and maintenance, and that unless Council could furnish a part of the NYA supervisor's salary, the Commission would have very little left for the purchase of necessary equipment.

Under the contract signed with the NYA, the city is to furnish a supervisor and all materials, while the NYA furnishes all labor. Council's finance committee and the service director will meet with the Commission to consider the proposition.

About three days work remain on the playground's tiling and draining installation. After that the NYA will be ready to begin construction work, Supervisor Charles Bosworth has reported.

There are between thirty and forty boys working on the project at the present time.

DIES COMMITTEE JOINS IN PROBE OF ARENA DEATH

CHICAGO, April 17—Agents of the Dies Committee were disclosed today to have entered the investigation of the slaying of John F. Arena, anti-Fascist editor of a Chicago Italian-language newspaper who was executed in gangland style on a crowded North Side street Tuesday night.

Interest of the Dies committee in the case was made plain by Chairman Martin Dies, who charged in Jasper, Texas, last night that he believed the 43-year-old editor was murdered because of aid he had given the committee in its investigation of alleged Fascist activities in Chicago.

"In my judgment," Dies said, "Arena was killed by Ova—the secret military police of Fascists—which we have been investigating for some time in an effort to establish the identity of its representatives."

Arena had given the Dies Committee "important evidence" the nature of which he was not at liberty to disclose, the congressman asserted.

The committee itself, Dies stated, hopes "to obtain information that will lead to apprehension of the killers."

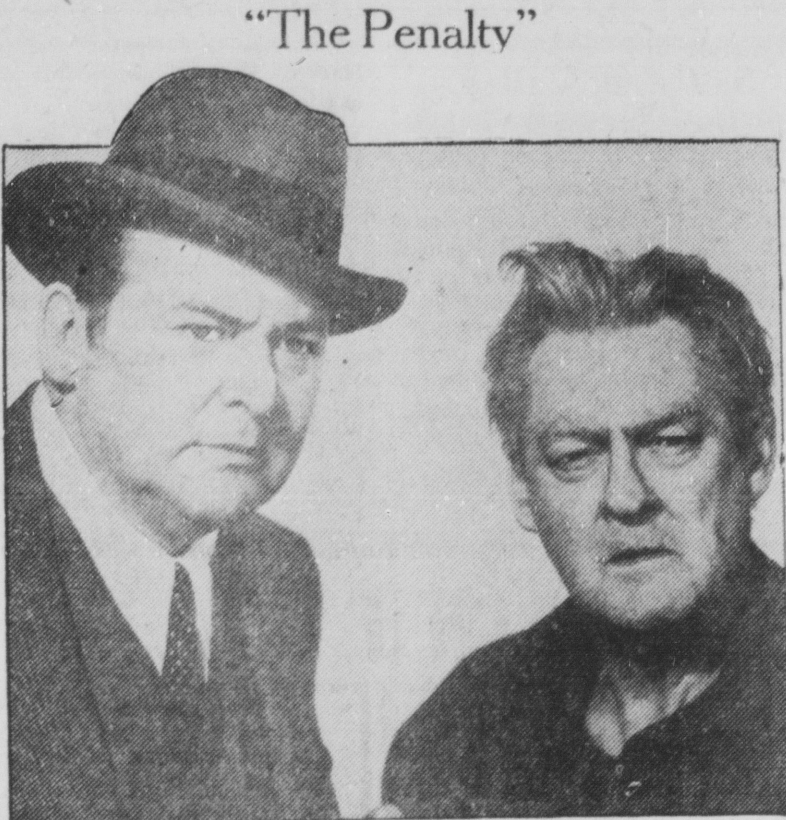

"Several of our witnesses have been killed now since I first issued the warning some time ago that lives of some of them are in danger," Dies said. He added that Arena's death will not bring a halt to his committee's probe into purported activities of the Ova.

Arena was killed by two swarthy men a few moments after he left a motion picture theatre with Miss Eleanor Herrmeyer, 17. As the couple seated themselves in Arena's car, two men ran up and told the editor he had a flat tire. When Arena left the car to inspect his tires, one of the men began shooting, and the editor fell mortally wounded. The killers escaped in another automobile.

More than 50 gridiron hopefuls reported for spring practice at Brown University. The number made Coach Skip Stanley's current squad the largest in Brown history.

State of Ohio, Division of Insurance, Columbus, July 1, 1940—The undersigned, Supt. of Ins. of the State of Ohio, hereby certifies that The WOLVERINE INSURANCE COMPANY, whose principal office is located at Lansing, State of Michigan, has complied with the laws of this State applicable to it and is authorized during the current year to transact in this State its appropriate business of insurance. Its financial condition is shown by its annual statement to have been as follows on December 31, 1939: Aggregate amount of available assets, $1,506,314.16; aggregate amount of liabilities (except capital), including re-insurance reserve, $1,125,890.25; net assets, $380,423.91; amount of actual paid-up capital, $200,000.00; surplus, $182,423.91; income for the year, $1,104,809.83.

WITNESS my name and the Official Seal of this division, the day and year first above written. John A. Lloyd, Supt. of Ins. of Ohio. (Seal)

REUNITED for the first time since their joint success in "You Can't Take It With You," Edward Arnold and Lionel Barrymore are offered the most dramatic roles of their respective careers in "The Penalty," which is showing on a double bill with Red Barry in "Frontier Vengeance" at the Cliftona Theatre Friday and Saturday.

Draft Chief Explains Ruling On CCC Youths

Members of the Civilian Conservation Corps who have been placed in Class 1 for Selective Service training prior to their enrollment and assignment to a CCC camp, will be permitted to report to the local Selective Service board nearest their camp for physical examination, Lieut. Col. C. W. Goble, state director of Selective Service, announced Thursday.

Director Goble also pointed out that a recent War Department ruling enables CCC enrollees to report for these Selective Service examinations without loss of CCC pay and also protects their status in the CCC should they be rejected at any Army induction station. He said:

"If a CCC selectee for military training was classified and placed in Class I by his Local Selective Service Board prior to enrollment in the CCC, but had not received notification to report for physical examination until after he had been assigned to a CCC camp, on receipt of such notice he may request his Local Board for permission to report to the local board nearest his CCC camp for the required examination. Also, the War Department has ruled that his CCC company commander will grant him leave of absence with pay for whatever time is deemed necessary to report to the Selective Service Board."

In addition, Director Goble said, "if a CCC enrollee who has been passed for Selective Service training and discharged from the CCC be subsequently rejected at the Army induction station, he may be reinstated in the CCC camp from which he was discharged upon application made within 15 days of the date of his rejection. If he does not wish to return to the CCC, he may apply in person to the commander of the CCC company from which he was discharged who will give him the authorized transportation to his home."

DeMILLE WITH CHARLIE

It looks like Charlie McCarthy will take direction whether he likes it or not Sunday. That's the night Cecil B. DeMille, noted film director and radio impresario, will drop in on the half-hour that's heard at 8:00 p. m. Zanies Abbott and Costello, Donald Dickson, Robert Armstrong's orchestra and a fellow named Edgar Bergen will all be there when DeMille points his megaphone at Charlie McCarthy. There is some doubt as to whether McCarthy will be speaking to manipulator Bergen after the ventriloquist cut down one of his old suits for Charlie's Easter costume. Charlie is rumored to be dicker with Cecil B. DeMille for a set of the puttees he wears while directing movies to cover the dummy's embarrassment.

EVERYBODY'S FARM

Station WLW has taken over operation of a 126 acre farm adjoining its transmitter site in Warren County, and will inaugurate rate intermittent "Everybody's Farm Hour" broadcasts from the premises starting Thursday, April 24, at 12:40 p. m.

The property will be used as an experimental farm to demonstrate the wisdom of modern agricultural methods. It will be called "Everybody's Farm," after the WLW program and, will be operated not as a showplace but as a one-man self-sustaining property, operations for which must pay their own way.

Maintenance of an experimental farm station is believed to be unique in the radio field. The project will adopt the most economical and scientific methods to build up the soil, increase its livestock carrying capacity, and make it as profitable an operation as possible.

RADIO BRIEFS

Fruits of Kay Kyser's newest hobby, collecting picture postcards, will be displayed by the Hobby Guild of America in department stores all over the country.

Bobbie Gibson, vocalist who first gained renown with Ben Bernie's orchestra, has joined the cast of "Big Sister" in support of Alice Frost.

Keenan Wynn, star of "The Amazing Mr. Smith," plans to appear on the stage in a Westport, Conn., stock company this summer.

"Home of the Brave" moves from CBS to NBC-Red on April 28.

"Moon River," name chosen by Eddie Byron, director of "Mr. District Attorney," for his new cabin cruiser, has a radio history. That's the name of the signoff program Eddie originated at WLW, Cincinnati, 12 years ago.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

COUNCIL OKES CADY'S CHOICES FOR PARK BOARD

SUPERVISOR TO BE PAID

City Considers Providing Part Of Salary For NYA Official

City Council, Wednesday night, confirmed Mayor William B. Cady's appointment of seven members to the City Park Commission and voted to consider providing at least a portion of the salary of a park supervisor.

Harry Bartholomew, chairman of the Park Commission, told members of Council that payment of the supervisor's salary from funds solicited for the north-end recreation center, was rapidly draining funds which should be used for park construction and maintenance, and that unless Council could furnish a part of the NYA supervisor's salary, the Commission would have very little left for the purchase of necessary equipment.

Under the contract signed with the NYA, the city is to furnish a supervisor and all materials, while the NYA furnishes all labor. Council's finance committee and the service director will meet with the Commission to consider the proposition.

About three days work remain on the playground's tiling and draining installation. After that the NYA will be ready to begin construction work, Supervisor Charles Bosworth has reported. There are between thirty and forty boys working on the project at the present time.

DIES COMMITTEE JOINS IN PROBE OF ARENA DEATH

CHICAGO, April 17—Agents of the Dies Committee were disclosed today to have entered the investigation of the slaying of John F. Arena, anti-Fascist editor of a Chicago Italian-language newspaper who was executed in gangland style on a crowded North Side street Tuesday night.

Interest of the Dies committee in the case was made plain by Chairman Martin Dies, who charged in Jasper, Texas, last night that he believed the 43-year-old editor was murdered because of aid he had given the committee in its investigation of alleged Fascist activities in Chicago.

"In my judgment," Dies said, "Arena was killed by Ova—the secret military police of Fascists—which we have been investigating for some time in an effort to establish the identity of its representatives."

Arena had given the Dies Committee "important evidence" the nature of which was not at liberty to disclose, the congressman asserted.

The committee itself, Dies stated, hopes "to obtain information that will lead to apprehension of the killers."

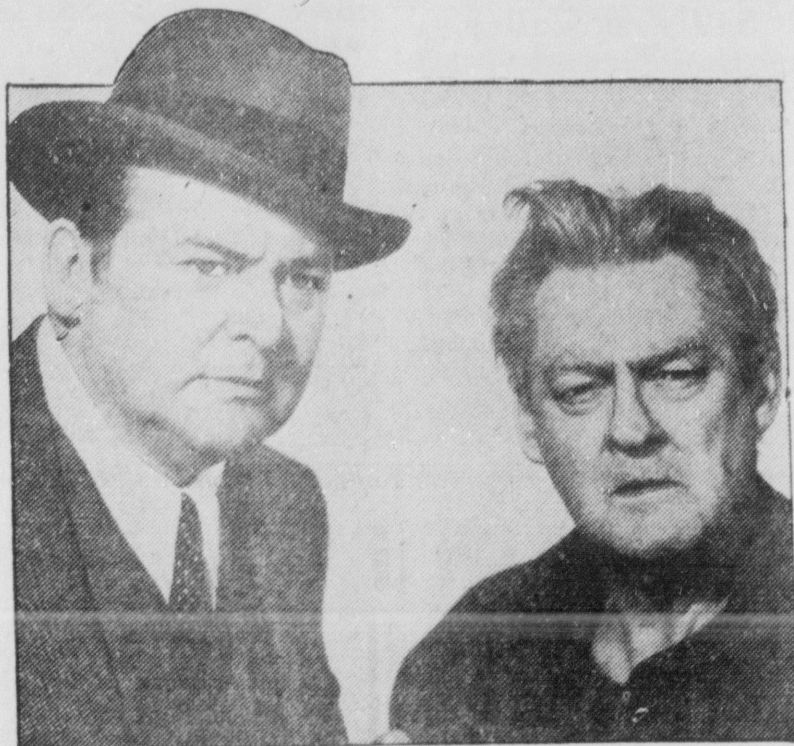

"Several of our witnesses have been killed now since I first issued the warning some time ago that lives of some of them are in danger," Dies said. He added that Arena's death will not bring a halt to his committee's probe into purported activities of the Ova.

Arena was killed by two swarthy men a few moments after he left a motion picture theatre with Miss Eleanor Herrmeyer, 17. As the couple seated themselves in Arena's car, two men ran up and told the editor he had a flat tire. When Arena left the car to inspect his tires, one of the men began shooting, and the editor fell mortally wounded. The killers escaped in another automobile.

Draft Chief Explains Ruling On CCC Youths

Members of the Civilian Conservation Corps who have been placed in Class 1 for Selective Service training prior to their enrollment and assignment to a CCC camp, will be permitted to report to the local Selective Service board nearest their camp for physical examination, Lieut. Col. C. W. Goble, state director of Selective Service, announced Thursday.

Director Goble also pointed out that a recent War Department ruling enables CCC enrollees to report for these Selective Service examinations without loss of CCC pay and also protects their status in the CCC should they be rejected at any Army induction station. He said:

"If a CCC selectee for military training was classified and placed in Class I by his Local Selective Service Board prior to enrollment in the CCC, but had not received notification to report for physical examination until after he had been assigned to a CCC camp, on receipt of such notice he may request his Local Board for permission to report to the local board nearest his CCC camp for the required examination. Also, the War Department has ruled that his CCC company commander will grant him leave of absence without pay for whatever time is deemed necessary to report to the Selective Service Board."

In addition, Director Goble said, "if a CCC enrollee who has been passed for Selective Service training and discharged from the CCC be subsequently rejected at the Army induction station, he may be reinstated in the CCC camp from which he was discharged upon application made within 15 days of the date of his rejection. If he does not wish to return to the CCC, he may apply in person to the commander of the CCC company from which he was discharged who will give him the authorized transportation to his home."

COUNTY RETAIL BUSINESS GOOD, RECEIPTS SHOW

State Treasurer Files Data On Sales Tax Stamps In District

1940 TRAILS FAR BEHIND

Entire South Central Area Shows Improvement During Week Of April 5

More evidence that Pickaway County's retail business is booming is contained in the report of the state treasurer covering sales of prepaid tax receipts. During the week ending April 5 Pickaway County reported receipts of $2,252.86, almost $1,000 above the $1,347.69 collected in the same week a year ago.

So far this year Pickaway County's sales tax receipts have totalled $19,174.83.

Other counties in South Central Ohio reported the following figures for the week ending April 5, the report comparing Pickaway County's business with that of its neighbors:

County	1940	1941
Ross	$4,461.47	$5,644.47
Perry	$1,332.69	$1,402.75
Madison	$1,928.11	$2,180.74
Hocking	$1,258.07	$1,548.26
Fayette	$1,752.62	$2,559.13

The total collected to date in Ohio this year is $13,425,434.30, compared with last year's figure of $11,505,268.53 for the same period. The week ending April 5, 1941, was much better than the same week a year ago, comparative figures being $1,542,850.68 for 1941 and $986,205.78 in 1940.

TWO EXECUTIVES OF MOVIES FACE TERM IN PRISON

NEW YORK, April 17—Joseph M. Schenck, 58-year-old multi-millionaire chairman of the 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation, and Joseph H. Moskowitz, eastern representative of the film company, were found guilty on charges of income tax evasion by a federal court jury today.

Schenck, one of the founders of the motion picture industry, was found guilty of charges of tax evasion in his returns for 1935 and 1936, and faces a possible maximum sentence of 10 years imprisonment and $20,000 fine for both counts.

Moskowitz was found guilty of tax evasion for 1936 and faces a five year sentence and $10,000 fine. He was not charged with any violation for the year 1935. Both Schenck and Moskowitz were found not guilty of charges involving the year 1937.

The jury, which deliberated for 10 hours before returning their verdict at 2:30 a. m. Thursday, found the two executives not guilty on a fourth indictment charging conspiracy.

Judge Grover M. Moscovitz set April 24 as the date he will impose sentence and entertain motions. Schenck, who was in the courtroom when the jury of 10 men and two women returned the verdict, showed no visible signs of emotion when the findings were read.

The jury, which obtained the case after six weeks of testimony, found Schenck, who paid income taxes of $52,509.86 in 1935, should have paid $242,005.17, a difference of $189,495.31. The jurors also found Schenck and Moskowitz guilty of defrauding the government of $64,197.31 in 1936, the year in which Schenck paid a $257,636.85 income tax.

FRIEL GIVES UP TRYING TO END CAPITAL STRIKE

COLUMBUS, April 17—Hope for an early settlement of the week-old strike of 138 workers of the Capital City Products Co. faded today when Federal Labor Conciliator Hugh D. Friel abandoned efforts to bring officials of the company and the American Federation of Labor together. Issues involved are the closed shop and a general wage increase.

It is estimated that there are 3,000 or more species of orchids in cultivation, and over 75 different varieties of wild orchids in the United States and Alaska.

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 76

Visited Wednesday afternoon for awhile with W. H. Brobeck, just plain "Bill" with most of the "old set" who have known him for these many years. On the coming July 16, Mr. Brobeck will have reached his 85th birthday. The greater part of his life was given to carpentry and many of the older dwellings in the village he assisted in erecting.

Recalls that in 1889 he and Frank Holt and Jacob Beaver with "Uncle Ben" Beaver as supervising boss, did much of the work on the old part of the present Methodist church. David Beaver had had the contract for the church erection but was forced to give it up because of typhoid fever which kept him abed for several weeks. The "Uncle Ben" referred to here was the father of both Jacob and David Beaver, the three now deceased. Mr. Brobeck said that the Frank Holt he names here did not stay carpenter very long, joining his father, William Holt in the bakery here and liked it so well that he operates his own now.

Mr. Brobeck gave us a little more of his earlier life doings by telling that in his late teens age, he learned telegraphy with the late Alonzo Glick, the first station agent here, as his teacher. Too, he took some time out, he said, to be grain elevator clerk for a few years for Edward Hedges, well up in the 80's and a resident now of the Capital City. And while doing all this, and to get in full time, he told us, served several years as Ashville village clerk.

Now, we are telling you, that Mr. Brobeck at his 85-year age, knows more Ashville history, as we believe, than any other one living person here. John Hoover, Ward E. Powell, Charles Foust, Cap. Hoover, Ed Dewey know a lot of the early history of the village, and one of these days, will "make notes" of all they can tell us about Ashville when they were youngsters and played all over this house-bare territory.

Ashville—Mrs. Bertha Petty is doing the preliminary work toward modernizing her home.

The Ashville Grain Company has just received two more cars of shelled corn in bushels about three thousand. This will be ground, go through the feed mixer with half dozen other ingredients and on out to the livestock on the community farms. The "South House" along with this one, is doing the same thing.

Around at the Cooper house, life saving station for birds, dogs, cats and all animal life that needs a friend, the pet squirrel has been given an out-of-doors cage of quite considerable dimensions and fitted up with all modern equipment. This is all very fine but a family of these bushy tails would be better, so think the Coopers, and knowing that we have been, through our news column in The Herald, successful in getting a lot of stray dogs into good country homes, they are asking us to find them a girl squirrel, old maid or any sort of female of the species, (fox, no grays wanted) that's wanting to settle down to family life. Our phone number is 79 or calling in person come to the supreme court chamber.

SEWAGE RATES FOR INDUSTRIES STILL PROBLEM

Councilmen Hear Manager Of Container Request Another Meeting

Not Dodging Responsibility, N. L. Cochran Informs City Officials

Circleville industrial chiefs Wednesday night balked at Council's proposed sewage disposal rate ordinance, maintaining the rates contained in the ordinance were "prohibitive to industry" and calling for another committee meeting with Council to consider "fair and equitable rates."

N. L. Cochran, manager of Container Corporation, denied reports from the committee considering sewage rates, that the city and the industries were near an agreement, and claimed that at least two of the industrial representatives had not even been notified that the ordinance had been drawn up. Manager Cochran told councilmen that industries were not trying to dodge their responsibilities and said that all they were asking was committee discussion of the matter.

The sewage-rate committee under the chairmanship of Councilman George Crites, held one meeting, and had scheduled a second, which never was held, according to Carl Leist, attorney for the industries.

Rates Higher

The ordinance presented to Council Wednesday night contained higher rates than the agreement based on the meeting of the committee, December 4. Total industrial revenue under the December 4 agreement amounted to $2,618.90, residential revenue $10,477.60 making a total revenue of $13,096.50 for the sewage disposal fund. With a budget of $11,465.00 set up, the excess income over expenditures under the old agreement would have been $1,631.50.

Under the terms provided in the ordinance, total industrial revenue would be raised to $4,450.97, residential revenue would remain about the same, making the total revenue $14,928.57 and the excess of income over expenditures $3,463.57.

Excess Opposed

Industrial representatives objected to the excess which the new ordinance would create, maintaining that such a profit was not justified.

Chairman Crites maintained that in order to arrive at "fair and equitable" rates for residential as well as industrial customers, Circleville industries would have to pay a greater percentage of the charges, regardless of the excess which might accumulate during the year.

Councilman B. H. Gordon was added to the sewage-rate committee, which will hold another meeting with city industries shortly.

Troop No. 4

The Girl Scout Patrol Council of Troop No. 4 met at Mrs. Marion's party home Tuesday and enjoyed a delicious dinner.

The Girl Scouts have been asked to buy a few tickets for the show, "Alice in Wonderland," and the troop has decided to give them to underprivileged children.

The girls are now selling cookies. All receive application blanks to fill out if they wish to attend the Tar Hollow camp. We also talked of the State Fair with the troop considering some entries in competition there.

DEFENSE OF THE AMERICAS

Uncle Sam's Big New Army Fit To Fight For Hemisphere

By Don Glassman
Written Exclusively for The Daily Herald

NEW YORK, April 17—For 20 years a skeleton force barely able to police the military outposts of the country, the United States Army today can throw a million trained men into the field and by June, 1941, it will have become a mobile mechanized fighting force one and a half-million strong.

Plans have already been made to double the last figure and bring the manpower up to 3,000,000 on short notice should the turn of events demand it. Any foreign power with designs on the Western Hemisphere must first reckon with this army whose training is based on the practical lessons of the European war and whose equipment embodies the latest innovations in military science and tactics.

The sudden expansion of Uncle Sam's fighting forces was made possible by advance paper preparations worked out in detail by the War Department general staff.

Many Innovations

Many innovations recently adopted in the United States Army are lessons from the wars in Europe, Africa and the Far East. Since 1931, when hostilities broke out in China, the United States Army has been represented by military observers at the front lines.

Such observers are now stationed on the continent, in England, Africa, China, Thailand and the Dutch East Indies. Their duty is to keep the general staff abreast of developments in military science and tactics.

When German panzer columns smashed through Holland, Belgium and France, United States army observers on the scene filed reports with the War Department, confirming what many American military leaders already knew, namely, that the time had come to abandon the old-fashioned notion of soldiers on foot, or fighting for a piece of bloody earth known as No Man's Land.

Today mechanization and fire-power rule military combat and any army which fails to profit by these lessons learned recently is doomed.

A rather late start in expanding has given the United States Army a technical advantage, for in designing and building new mechanized equipment, it can profit by its own experience and that of the European war.

There is good reason to believe that the new armament rolling off industrial assembly lines is superior to most of the equipment now in the hands of European belligerents.

One military lesson of World war II may be reduced to a single compound word—speed-mobility. The French anchored an army to the Maginot line but the Nazis tanks made a tactical detour around the fixed fortifications and reached their objective, Paris, with minimum losses.

Fully cognizant that the United States must be prepared for action anywhere in the Western Hemisphere, the United States Army command is planning for mobile operations by building a mass-production tank arsenal where 25-ton tanks can be produced on a production line with greater speed and economy than the world has ever known.

186,000 Army Trucks

The army still drills its men for foot maneuvers and marches, but in actual combat, it will soon have 186,000 speedy trucks and motor cars to move them about at will.

Besides trucks and tanks, the army's combat units have ordered for prompt delivery 17,000 heavy guns, 13,000 trench mortars, 2,000 scout cars, 2,240 anti-aircraft guns, 400,000 automatic rifles, 300,000 machine guns, etc.

The air corps program calls for 18,000 new planes immediately and many thousands more for later delivery. More than 50,000 student pilots will receive active training in 1941 and 30,000 advanced specialized training. The present air corps force has passed the 125,000 mark and is increasing rapidly.

About $2,000,000,000 have been appropriated for big guns now coming off production lines in ever-increasing numbers.

Fast-Firing Guns

Standbys of the new artillery regiments are the .75-mm. pieces which range seven miles and fire 166 3-inch shells per hour, each shell weighing 15 pounds, and the .155-mm. howitzers which hurl 100-pound shells into an enemy's midst 10 miles away.

For special assignments the artillery hauls out odd guns which fire shells that sing, whistle, buzz or burst into shrapnel, gas, smoke or whatever the enemy hates at the moment.

New infantry divisions have two artillery regiments, light and heavy, 60-odd guns in all, and in order to keep up with the mechanized infantry, the artillery and accompanying ammunition march on motor cars.

Anti-Aircraft Batteries

Supplemented by 800,000,000 candle-power searchlights, anti-aircraft batteries are located behind the "big Berthas." Under the guidance of a "mechanical brain," a battery of four anti-aircraft guns can fire 100 aimed shots per minute. All branches of the United States army are equipped with anti-aircraft batteries, sound-locating devices and searchlights.

Other vital units of the United States army are the signal corps, the fellows who won't understand the word "can't." They dig tunnels, move mountains, furnish water, run rail roads, cross flooded rivers and carry around a general assortment of bridges.

The signal corps manages the communications systems—semaphore, radio, carrier pigeon, telephone, telegraph, courier and others which are secret. As a sideline, it forecasts weather, makes photographs and movies and listens to enemy radio and telephone conversations besides operating its own fixed radio network that covers the globe.

Mechanized Cavalry

The new army boasts mechanized cavalrymen who mount armored cars, combat cars, motorcycles, baby tanks and horses, if the terrain requires them.

Many of the armored units carry machine guns and two-way radios, enabling men to shoot and talk whether they are moving or are at a standstill. Every unit of a mechanized cavalry regiment can roll, and its fire power makes it a veritable "hell-on-wheels."

The United States army will soon have about 27 infantry divisions ready for action with the latest mechanized equipment. The fire-power of individual soldiers has been greatly increased.

A revolution in infantry tactics has taken place in the last few years. The new United States Infantry Manual explains that an advancing infantryman will be assisted by supporting fire from the rear. A so-called "base of fire" in the rear, composed of heavy machine guns and mortars, is coordinated with the movement of riflemen.

Makeup of An Army

The expanded United States army distributes each 1,000 men as follows:

Infantry	290
Field Artillery	141
Coast Artillery*	131
Air Corps	128
Medical Corps	76
Quartermaster Corps	69
Corps of Engineers	61
Cavalry	29
Signal Corps	29
Armored Force	22
Ordnance Department	18
Chemical Warfare	4
Finance	2

*Includes anti-aircraft force.

Directing this vast modern army is General George C. Marshall, chief of staff. Under him are five division chiefs, each responsible for a given function. In reorganizing the army, the United States is creating a new armored force made of mobile units of the infantry and cavalry and formed into divisions resembling German panzer columns.

WILLKIE RETURNS TO LAW; HEADS NEW YORK FIRM

NEW YORK, April 17 — Sign painters today went to work on a glass-paneled door of a law office in New York's Broad Street—inscribing in gilt letters the name of "Willkie, Owen, Otis & Bailly."

On the other side of the door sat the new senior partner of the firm, Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, who plans to resume active law practice in May with trial work and advocacy.

Willkie, voicing pleasure at getting back into law, which always has been his profession, said he would continue his interest and activity in politics, expressing himself in articles and speeches.

TWO MEASURES VOTED

An ordinance amending the annual appropriation ordinance to include funds necessary for the purchase of an adding machine for the Collector of Sewer Rental Funds was passed at Wednesday night's council meeting after councilmen had suspended the three reading clause and voted on the ordinance. Another ordinance authorizing the safety director to advertise for bids for laundry service for Berger Hospital was passed during the meeting.

SEWAGE RATES FOR INDUSTRIES STILL PROBLEM

Councilmen Hear Manager Of Container Request Another Meeting

Not Dodging Responsibility, N. L. Cochran Informs City Officials

Circleville industrial chiefs Wednesday night balked at Council's proposed sewage disposal rate ordinance, maintaining the rates contained in the ordinance were "prohibitive to industry" and calling for another committee meeting with Council to consider "fair and equitable rates."

N. L. Cochran, manager of Container Corporation, denied reports from the committee considering sewage rates, that the city and the industries were near an agreement, and claimed that at least two of the industrial representatives had not even been notified that the ordinance had been drawn up. Manager Cochran told councilmen that industries were not trying to dodge their responsibilities and said that all they were asking was committee discussion of the matter.

The sewage-rate committee under the chairmanship of Councilman George Crites, held one meeting, and had scheduled a second, which never was held, according to Carl Leist, attorney for the industries.

Rates Higher

The ordinance presented to Council Wednesday night contained higher rates than the agreement based on the meeting of the committee, December 4. Total industrial revenue under the December 4 agreement amounted to $2,618.90, residential revenue $10,477.60 making a total revenue of $13,096.50 for the sewage disposal fund. With a budget of $11,465.00 set up, the excess income over expenditures under the old agreement would have been $1,631.50.

Under the terms provided in the ordinance, total industrial revenue would be raised to $4,450.97, residential revenue would remain about the same, making the total revenue $14,928.57 and the excess of income over expenditures $3,463.57.

Excess Opposed

Industrial representatives objected to the excess which the new ordinance would create, maintaining that such a profit was not justified.

Chairman Crites maintained that in order to arrive at "fair and equitable" rates for residential as well as industrial customers, Circleville industries would have to pay a greater percentage of the charges, regardless of the excess which might accumulate during the year.

Councilman B. H. Gordon was added to the sewage-rate committee, which will hold another meeting with city industries shortly.

Troop No. 4

The Girl Scout Patrol Council of Troop No. 4 met at Mrs. Marion's party home Tuesday and enjoyed a delicious dinner.

The Girl Scouts have been asked to buy a few tickets for the show, "Alice in Wonderland", and the troop has decided to give them to underprivileged children.

The girls are now selling cookies. All receive application blanks to fill out if they wish to attend the Tar Hollow camp. We also talked of the State Fair with the troop considering some entries in competition there.

Christian hymns in 200 or more languages and dialects in which they have been written or translated, are said to number not less than 400,000.

Uncle Sam's Big New Army Fit To Fight For Hemisphere

By Don Glassman
Written Exclusively for The Daily Herald

NEW YORK, April 17—For 20 years a skeleton force barely able to police the military outposts of the country, the United States Army today can throw a million trained men into the field and by June, 1941, it will have become a mobile mechanized fighting force one and a half-million strong.

Plans have already been made to double the last figure and bring the manpower up to 3,000,000 on short notice should the turn of events demand it. Any foreign power with designs on the Western Hemisphere must first reckon with this army whose training is based on the practical lessons of the European war and whose equipment embodies the latest innovations in military science and tactics.

The sudden expansion of Uncle Sam's fighting forces was made possible by advance paper preparations worked out in detail by the War Department general staff.

Many Innovations

Many innovations recently adopted in the United States Army are lessons from the wars in Europe, Africa and the Far East. Since 1931, when hostilities broke out in China, the United States Army has been represented by military observers at the front lines.

Such observers are now stationed on the continent, in England, Africa, China, Thailand and the Dutch East Indies. Their duty is to keep the general staff abreast of developments in military science and tactics.

When German panzer columns smashed through Holland, Belgium and France, United States army observers on the scene filed reports with the War Department, confirming what many American military leaders already knew, namely, that the time had come to abandon the old-fashioned notion of soldiers on foot, or fighting for a piece of bloody earth known as No Man's Land.

Today mechanization and firepower rule military combat and any army which fails to profit by these lessons learned recently is doomed.

A rather late start in expanding has given the United States Army a technical advantage, for in designing and building new mechanized equipment, it can profit by its own experience and that of the European war.

There is good reason to believe that the new armament rolling off industrial assembly lines is superior to most of the equipment now in the hands of European belligerents.

One military lesson of World War II may be reduced to a single compound word—speed-mobility. The French anchored an army to the Maginot line but the Nazis tanks made a tactical detour around the fixed fortifications and reached their objective, Paris, with minimum losses.

Fully cognizant that the United States must be prepared for action anywhere in the Western Hemisphere, the United States Army command is planning for mobile operations by building a mass-production tank arsenal where 25-ton tanks can be produced on a production line with greater speed and economy than the world has ever known.

The army still drills its men for foot maneuvers and marches, but in actual combat, it will soon have 186,000 speedy trucks and motor cars to move them about at will.

Besides trucks and tanks, the army's combat units have ordered for prompt delivery 17,000 heavy guns, 13,000 trench mortars, 2,000 scout cars, 2,240 anti-aircraft guns, 400,000 automatic rifles, 300,000 machine guns, etc.

The air corps program calls for 18,000 new planes immediately and many thousands more for later delivery. More than 50,000 student pilots will receive active training in 1941 and 30,000 advanced specialized training. The present air corps force has passed the 125,000 mark and is increasing rapidly.

About $2,000,000,000 have been appropriated for big guns now coming off production lines in ever-increasing numbers.

Fast-Firing Guns

Standbys of the new artillery regiments are the .77-mm. pieces

which range seven miles and fire 166 3-inch shells per hour, each shell weighing 15 pounds, and the .155-mm. howitzers which hurl 100-pound shells into an enemy's midst 10 miles away.

For special assignments the artillery hauls out odd guns which fire shells that sing, whistle, buzz or burst into shrapnel, gas, smoke or whatever the enemy hates at the moment.

New infantry divisions have two artillery regiments, light and heavy, 60-odd guns in all, and in order to keep up with the mechanized infantry, the artillery and accompanying ammunition march on motors also.

The army's coastal defense guns range from 6 to 16 inches, depending upon location. The 16-inchers line the strategic harbors and ports and can toss a 2,000-pound armor-piercing shell for a distance of 20 miles. Besides, there are many 3, 6, 8 and 10-inch caliber guns and 12-inch high-firing mortars.

Anti-Aircraft Batteries

Supplemented by 800,000,000 candle-power searchlights, anti-aircraft batteries are located behind the "big Berthas." Under the guidance of a "mechanical brain," a battery of four anti-aircraft guns can fire 100 aimed shots per minute. All branches of the United States army are equipped with anti-aircraft batteries, sound-locating devices and searchlights.

Other vital units of the United States army are the signal corps and the engineer corps, the fellows who won't understand the word "can't." They dig tunnels, move mountains, furnish water, run rail roads, cross flooded rivers and carry around a general assortment of bridges.

The signal corps manages the communications systems—semaphore, radio, carrier pigeon, telephone, telegraph, courier and others which are secret. As a sideline, it forecasts weather, makes photographs and movies and listens to enemy radio and telephone conversations besides operating its own fixed radio network that covers the globe.

Mechanized Cavalry

The new army boasts mechanized cavalrymen who mount armored cars, combat cars, motorcycles, baby tanks and horses, if the terrain requires them.

Many of the armored units carry machine guns and two-way radios, enabling men to shoot and talk whether they are moving or are at a standstill. Every unit of a mechanized cavalry regiment can roll, and its fire power makes it a veritable "hell-on-wheels."

The United States army will soon have about 27 infantry divisions ready for action with the latest mechanized equipment. The fire-power of individual soldiers has been greatly increased.

A revolution in infantry tactics has taken place in the last few years. The new United States Infantry Manual explains that an advancing infantryman will be assisted by supporting fire from the rear. A so-called "base of fire" in the rear, composed of heavy machine guns and mortars, is coordinated with the movement of riflemen.

Makeup of An Army

The expanded United States army distributes each 1,000 men as follows:

- Infantry 290
- Field Artillery 141
- Coast Artillery* 131
- Air Corps 128
- Medical Corps 76
- Quartermaster Corps 69
- Corps of Engineers 61
- Cavalry 29
- Signal Corps 29
- Armored Force 22
- Ordnance Department 18
- Chemical Warfare 4
- Finance 2

*Includes anti-aircraft force.

Directing this vast modern army is General George C. Marshall, chief of staff. Under him are five division chiefs, each responsible for a given function. In reorganizing the army, the United States is creating a new armored force made of mobile units of the infantry and cavalry and formed into divisions resembling German panzer columns.

WILLKIE RETURNS TO LAW; HEADS NEW YORK FIRM

NEW YORK, April 17 — Sign painters today went to work on a glass-paneled door of a law office in New York's Broad Street—in-cribing in gilt letters the name of "Willkie, Owen, Otis & Bailly."

On the other side of the door sat the new senior partner of the firm, Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, who plans to resume active law practice in May with trial work and advocacy.

Willkie, voicing pleasure at getting back into law, which always has been his profession, said he would continue his interest and activity in politics, expressing himself in articles and speeches.

PLAY BALL!

THERE are some people who think it's frivolous to have a baseball season as usual when the world is like this. And such an attitude is plain nonsense. The worse things get—and they may get considerably worse before they get better—the more we should play ball.

Baseball is not only the most popular American sport, whether professional or amateur. It is one of the finest forms of physical exercise. It is also an excellent way to get fresh air. It is a God-sent relief from mental troubles. It is a soul-cleanser.

It is a sovereign sport which creates sportsmen. If the world in general played baseball as we do, it wouldn't be in the mess it's in today. Suppose Hitler had grown up in a corner lot, playing ball with normal boys!

CHANGE

TAKING a long, geological view of the earth, the poet Tennyson wrote:

"The hills are vapor, and they move
From form to form, and nothing stands.
They melt like mists—the solid lands;
Like clouds they shape themselves and go."

It seems like that now with what, for lack of a better name, we call our "civilization." Governments and nations dissolve before our eyes as this great war goes on. The old landmarks disappear. The old customs change. Man remains basically the same, but his ways, his practices, his outlook, are altered so rapidly that the last generation would hardly recognize us now, and we cannot tell what life will be like in the next generation.

UNCLE SAM'S JEEPS?

THE names applied to the recruits in the training camps have lacked a good deal in euphony, wit and popular appeal. People here and there have wished that some one would suggest terms more pleasing than "enrollee," "selectee," "draftee," and so on. No one seems to be inspired.

Now it comes out that the soldiers are calling themselves "Jeeps." This, followers of Popeye know, was the name of a strange pet the sailor had. The Jeep, an oddly sapient animal, could answer questions by nodding or shaking his head. He was always right—though often misinterpreted—in the hazardous adventures through which he went with the sailor man.

Just why the soldiers have become Jeeps would be hard to tell, but the name has the virtue of brevity and humor. If

PRESS CENSORSHIP ON INCREASE

WASHINGTON—Today, as the foremost editors of the nation gather in Washington for their annual conference, the foremost question before them is government news censorship.

So far the authors of this column have not been among those who thought the New Deal was attempting to throttle the press. In fact, we have contended that press relations under the Roosevelt Administration have been the freest in history, completely devoid of attempts to high-pressure publishers into firing independent newsmen—a policy of the previous Administration.

Even today — and this column is not written without rubbing shoulders daily with many government officials — we find most of official Washington completely devoid of censorship. However, there are certain notable exceptions.

These exceptions are: the Navy; certain sections of the Office of Production Management and other Defense agencies; and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

It should be noted that when we use the word "censorship" we refer only to information to which the public is entitled, not to confidential matters or military secrets.

WHO WORKS FOR U. S.?

For instance, there is no reason why the public should not know who are the dollar-a-year men working for the government. There never has been any secrecy before this about the identity of government employees or government voluntary advisers.

However, when we asked for this list several months ago it was at first refused. Later it was stated that the information would be given only if a written request was made—a highly unusual procedure in Washington, where a mere list of government servants is considered automatically public property.

Last week the OPM finally, on its own initiative, made public a complete enumeration of dollar-a-year men on its staff.

Similarly, we were refused a list of employees of Miss Harriet Elliott's Defense Consumer's Division and their salaries without a formal written request. In contrast, the traditional practice of established agencies such as the State and War Departments is to publish the salaries of every official in the annual register.

Again, the RFC at first refused to reveal the salary of Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith's son-in-law, who is on its payroll, and it was forthcoming only after the question was put up to the RFC board and debated there.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, like the RFC, is ruled with an iron fist by Secretary Jesse Jones. Recently Carroll Wilson, executive of the Bureau, assembled all its employees and threatened

Disorders of System Which Occur After Fifty

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● We are beginning to pay more attention to the problems of the middle-aged and elderly patient. A specialty known as "geriatrics" is growing up which deals with this subject. All bodily conditions are different at the extremes of life and different, indeed, from those in vigorous adult life. The middle-aged and elderly patient may have symptoms from a particular condition that are very different from the symptoms of that condition in younger life. And besides that, they have special problems of their own.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

These observations apply to disorders of the nervous system in those over fifty. Most nervous symptoms at this age are due to changes in the arteries of the central nervous system, particularly in the brain. The commonest serious complication of this is when one of the hardened arteries breaks and an apoplexy occurs. Plenty of people get over apoplexies, however, and only a small percentage of them have the residual attack fifteen years ago and has gone on ever since in spite of frantic medical advice to the contrary, tending to the details of a large business.

The little losses of memory and habitual forgetfulness that descend upon some over fifty are undoubtedly due also to changes in the arteries of the brain. The blood sometimes flows sluggishly through quite important areas and their functional activity is diminished. Personality changes, moods, suddenly acquired prejudices against members of the family, have also an organic basis in poor circulation in certain localizations in the brain.

Tremor of Muscles

The most annoying of the symptoms of hardened arteries in the brain is the trembling and tremor of the muscles. These are often noticed only when a voluntary action is intended. I can tell the age of many of my correspondents by the handwriting. More amazing is the tremor that persists even when the individual is quiet. Some new remedies have been suggested for this condition which give it a better outlook than was once the case, but in the elderly, remedies do not always work so well as in the young.

This brings up the subject of the action of stimulating and depressing drugs in the elderly. Alcoholic beverages may act very peculiarly here. Many an aging gaffer who has been used to his dram before supper, finds it makes him so confused he has to give it up. Remedies intended to produce sleep may cause wild excitement in these subjects.

The digestion is not always up to par in them either, in spite of the persistence of appetite, and they may not absorb all the elements of a balanced diet even if they eat a well balanced diet. So nutritional deficiencies may cause mental confusion and neuralgias and peculiar sensations of the skin, and require reinforcement with the vitamins.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Fat:—Please print in your column what you think of a diet for reducing of skimmed milk and bananas.

Answer:—This is the well known Harrop Diet and is very effective. Dr. Harrop, of Baltimore, designed it in order to satisfy the two fundamental requirements of the reduction diet: (1) to have a balanced diet and (2) to have the meal satisfy the appetite.

A. L.:—"Should a doctor be consulted at the first sign of varicose veins or will resting prevent them from getting worse?"

Answer:—I do not believe that it is fair to say that a doctor should be consulted at the first sign of varicose veins and in the great majority of cases they never give any serious trouble. Rest and an elastic bandage may prevent progressive development for years.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

TOM AND BETSY FORMAN inherit Halcyn Island from invalid Jordan Markham, who was found shot to death. Markham had established the spot as a "honeymoon isle," but his ideas had been opposed bitterly by crooked business associates who wanted to make it a base for smuggling aliens into the United States.

NATALIE SCHUTLER, moneyed society girl, and BROOKS MARCHEBANKS, possessor of high social position, but not much money, are married. Starting on their honeymoon, they find a wrecked car in which are an injured boy and girl. Discovering that they are without funds, Natalie sees to it that the newly-married couple CORALIE AND JOHN SIMPSON, are provided for. Coralie says that they were bound for Halcyn Island to spend their honeymoon. Natalie and Brooks change places with Coralie and John and decide to go to the honeymoon isle.

As Tom and Betsy are about to meet the first boatload of honeymooners arriving at Halcyn Island, Norton Blake, one of Markham's crooked business associates, lands and declares he wants to buy the young people's interest in the island.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

WITH BETSY'S hand in his, Tom led the way down the path to the pier. Blake stood for a long moment looking after them, his face dark and ugly.

Betsy shivered again as she and Tom stood on the pier while the boat swept in to make a landing. "That man gives me a creepy sort of feeling," she confided. "As if I'd come along a garden path and all of a sudden almost stepped on a snake."

Tom laughed. "Poor Mr. Blake! He thinks he's such a handsome brute, and such a devil with the ladies," he teased.

"Devil is right," said Betsy grimly.

By now the boat had tied up and the first of the passengers were coming ashore. There were only four of them, Tom and Betsy saw; a man who was frankly middle-aged, his portly build partly disguised by the well-cut white linen suit that he wore, an almost giddy band about his Panama hat. The lady he was so tenderly assisting to the pier was plump, blonde, rather heavily rouged and in her late thirties, for all her kittenish coy manner.

"Mr. and Mrs. Forman, I presume," said the gentleman, having assisted his lady ashore. "May I present myself? Major William Edmonds, and the lady who did me the honor to become my wife."

"How do you do?" said Betsy pleasantly. "I'm Mrs. Forman, and this is my husband. We are very happy to have you here."

"How sweet of you!" cooed Mrs. Edmonds, giving Betsy little more than a swift glance, her eyes turning at once to Tom and lingering as though pleased. "This too, TOO lovely spot! And your dear, kind

Mr. Markham—to be willing to have a lot of strangers here—"

Major Edmonds beamed happily behind her, yet there was somewhere in the back of his tired, kind eyes the faintest hint of a plea for understanding of his fluttering, glib wife whom he quite obviously adored.

"I hope you will be quite comfortable in the cottage we've prepared for you," said Betsy, giving the major a friendly handshake.

"Oh, you mustn't worry about us, my dear. An old campaigner like me gets mighty few chances at anything as beautiful and as luxurious as Halcyn Island, I can assure you," said the major handsomely.

Mrs. Edmonds, her hand possessively through Tom's arm, was leading the way toward the path across the sand dunes, trailing behind her a rather heady scent of spicy sweetness. Betsy would have sworn that Mrs. Edmonds also trailed the lacy fluffiness of an evening gown, though in reality her frock of powder-blue crepe was quite plain and well cut.

"Willie, dear," her voice trailed behind her, soft and sweet, but definitely with the expectation of being obeyed.

"Coming, dear," said the major hastily. Shouldering the two bags, he followed, with an almost apologetic glance at Betsy.

Betsy turned to the other couple who still stood on the pier. A small, cuddly sort of a blonde girl in a short, rather rumpled dark frock, her head bare, her sunny curls tangled in an enchantingly childlike confusion. Beside her, a tall, broad-shouldered, husky young fellow who looked as though he might have been far more at home in football togs than in the gray slacks and blue pullover sweater he wore. His head was bare, too, and Betsy saw straw-colored, crisp locks that would not quite lie straight.

Before Betsy could speak, the girl steadied herself against the major's arm, lifted one foot and then the other, gravely and thoroughly examining the scuffed, rather thin sole.

"It's funny," she mused, as though she spoke her thoughts aloud, "I'd have sworn they were gummy, since I've been ankle-deep in syrup and honeymoon for the past two and a half hours."

Betsy looked puzzled. The young man muttered something under his breath that sounded like, "For heaven's sake, behave yourself."

But the girl looked straight at Betsy and asked with bland sweetness, "What's the penalty for murder in this state?"

"I'm afraid I wouldn't know," "Well, never mind. The judge will tell me," said the girl innocently, "when I'm brought to the bar for murder of that blondine—er—damsel." She nodded in the direction of Mrs. Edmonds.

Betsy laughed. "Have you known her long?" she asked, for want of anything better to say at the moment.

"For years and years and years," answered the girl grimly. "Since two-fifteen this afternoon when we met at the pier to wait for the boat. I wonder now at my self-control that I didn't shove her off the pier. It would have been justifiable, I do assure you."

"I suppose," said Betsy, grinning, "that she made a pass at your man?"

"Him?" the girl jerked an expressive thumb over her shoulder toward the tall, husky young man. "Oh, no—she wouldn't dare. Bill's too smart for the likes of her. It takes nice old dodos like the major to fall for her line—"

"Pay her no mind at all, Mrs. Forman. She's not used to it," the young man interrupted in the patient tone of one long resigned to the unexpected naughtiness of a badly brought-up child. "We're the Bill McKays. She's Terry; I'm Bill."

"And," stated Terry with an almost ominous calm, "I'll slug the first nit-wit who calls him Willie." Betsy laughed. "Well, I should think you would," she answered promptly. "How are you, Bill? Greetings to both of you—and welcome to Halcyn Island, and all the usual stuff of that sort."

Terry stared at her, wide blue eyes started as though she noticed Betsy for the first time. She caught her breath and turned to Bill, saying hastily, in a tone of keen delight, "BILL! She's one of us! She's OUR kind of people!"

"Smile when you say that, angel-puss," Bill protested swiftly, throwing Betsy a conciliatory glance. "Maybe she won't like it."

"Goosh!" said Terry joyously, and flung herself upon Betsy with a bear-like hug. "I had my heart set on a perfectly swell time down here—like the dumb old I am. It hadn't occurred to me that there'd be creatures like the Edmonds dame down here—until I saw her. And then the awful thought swept over me that if there was one like her, there might be others. Coming over on the boat, I seriously thought of crawling overboard—only the water looked so wet. How old are you?"

Betsy blinked and chuckled. "Twenty—do you mind?"

"I think it's swell," said Terry happily. "I'm 18."

"Terry!" said Bill sternly. "We—well, almost nineteen—"

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, April 17

THIS day may be notable for the breaking up of long thwarted ambitions, the crumbling away of stagnations. Things should begin to stir in a dynamic and constructive manner which should place the fortunes and the objectives on a definitely stable basis. But such efforts should be based on well matured plans and sound judgment, and with an eye to loopholes of fraud, deception or misrepresentation, with particular wariness as to writings and documents. Some peculiar or sinister matter may be dragged into the open.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a state of affairs which may be definitely and decisively developed in the direction of putting the fortunes and ambitions on an enduring and stable basis. With well laid plans and sagacity there should be much progress and productive work, with many obstacles and old frustrations and impediments swept away for good and all. Some subtle or singular situations may be brought to the surface, but in all affairs be alert to treachery and fraud and sign and read all papers with great precaution.

A child born on this day should be enterprising, energetic, industrious and of sturdy character although with some inclinations toward accomplishing things by expediency rather than principle.

PLAY BALL!

THERE are some people who think it's frivolous to have a baseball season as usual when the world is like this. And such an attitude is plain nonsense. The worse things get—and they may get considerably worse before they get better—the more we should play ball.

Baseball is not only the most popular American sport, whether professional or amateur. It is one of the finest forms of physical exercise. It is also an excellent way to get fresh air. It is a God-sent relief from mental troubles. It is a soul-cleanser.

It is a sovereign sport which creates sportsmen. If the world in general played baseball as we do, it wouldn't be in the mess it's in today. Suppose Hitler had grown up in a corner lot, playing ball with normal boys!

CHANGE

TAKING a long, geological view of the earth, the poet Tennyson wrote:
"The hills are vapor, and they move
From form to form, and nothing stands.
They melt like mists—the solid lands;
Like clouds they shape themselves and go."

It seems like that now with what, for lack of a better name, we call our "civilization." Governments and nations dissolve before our eyes as this great war goes on.
The old landmarks disappear. The old customs change. Man remains basically the same, but his ways, his practices, his outlook, are altered so rapidly that the last generation would hardly recognize us now, and we cannot tell what life will be like in the next generation.

UNCLE SAM'S JEEPS?

THE names applied to the recruits in the training camps have lacked a good deal in euphony, wit and popular appeal.
People here and there have wished that some one would suggest terms more pleasing than "enrollee," "selectee," "draftee," and so on. No one seems to be inspired.

Now it comes out that the soldiers are calling themselves "Jeeps." This, followers of Popeye know, was the name of a strange pet the sailor had. The Jeep, an oddly sapient animal, could answer questions by nodding or shaking his head. He was always right—though often misinterpreted—in the hazardous adventures through which he went with the sailor man.

Just why the soldiers have become Jeeps would be hard to tell, but the name has the virtue of brevity and humor. If

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Awake at daylight, probably aroused by the crowing of a rooster. Insistent was that bird. Kept right at his singing for a quarter of an hour. Then a sleepy robin joined in. Later came other robins until they formed a beautiful chorus. In joined a woodpecker who has a favorite drumming post in the back alley. Something startled the dog next door and his voice went off like a bunch of firecrackers. Then I dressed and went downstairs to scan the morning prints hopeful of better news out of Europe, but finding none. Looks as though England is in a bad way, but England has been hard put before and will pull through somehow.

At the post did meet Les May and Mack Parrett. Les offered compliments on the "new" suit
I was wearing. It's only three years old and I rather disliked to disillusion Les, but I did.
Mack asked what is to be done about housing the mechanics to be brought here for service in the CCC garage. Some 34 of them and their families. There's a real problem for the real estate men and the Chamber of Commerce. We can not expect our ville to grow unless we provide houses for those who would live here.

Drove through the North end and once more was delighted by the great improvement of the last four years. Really a lot of fine new homes out there, and others in the building. That is the way our town will build.
North. One day our corporate limits will be extended quite a distance in that direction. Some wise promoter could make a lot of money right now in that district. Many white collar workers in Columbus would move in on us if given the chance.

Noted several soldier boys home on furlough. And around each one was a crowd of young friends, all asking questions about the training. Sooner or later all the young men will go through camp and they are interested in learning all they can about the life. Well, the days are long and the work not too easy, but one gains much from service if the service is not in actual warfare. I think that the thing most irksome to me was that bugle at five fifteen each morning. The work comes naturally. Sometimes a little pressure is needed. I always was afraid of a knife, so when it came to a bayonet drill I decided I need pay little attention for I was absolutely certain that hand-to-hand bayonet combat would not fall to my lot.

I knew that two would be required to stage a fight and that the other fellow would be the only one present.

The drill sergeant noted the half-hearted approach of mine, walked over to me and said,
"Don't like it, eh buddy." "No," was my reply. "I won't have to fight anyone this way." "Well, you might get cornered," said the sarge, "and there are just a few things you should know just in case. When you stick a man with a bayonet pull the knife out instantly and in the same direction as entry. Otherwise he will fall and wrench the gun out of your hands. Then someone might stick you. Getting a bayonet out of a man frequently is not easy. Sometimes you can do it by standing on him and pulling with all your might. Sometimes it is necessary to shoot into him several times to loosen the blade." Then the sergeant walked away. I pondered over that for a few minutes, reached the absolute conclusion that I wanted no one shooting a bayonet out of me and that the best insurance against that would be bayonet proficiency. I really went to work and because I was so darned afraid of a knife I became really good with a bayonet.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

PRESS CENSORSHIP ON INCREASE

WASHINGTON—Today, as the foremost editors of the nation gather in Washington for their annual conference, the foremost question before them is government news censorship.

So far the authors of this column have not been among those who thought the New Deal was attempting to throttle the press. In fact, we have contended that press relations under the Roosevelt Administration have been the freest in history, completely devoid of attempts to high-pressure publishers into firing independent newsmen—a policy of the previous Administration.

Even today—and this column is not written without rubbing shoulders daily with many government officials—we find most of official Washington completely devoid of censorship. However, there are certain notable exceptions.

These exceptions are: the Navy; certain sections of the Office of Production Management and other Defense agencies; and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

It should be noted that when we use the word "censorship" we refer only to information to which the public is entitled, not to confidential matters or military secrets.

WHO WORKS FOR U. S.?

For instance, there is no reason why the public should not know who are the dollar-a-year men working for the government. There never has been any secrecy before this about the identity of government employees or government voluntary advisers.

However, when we asked for this list several months ago it was at first refused.
Later it was stated that the information would be given only if a written request was made—a highly unusual procedure in Washington, where a mere list of government servants is considered automatically public property.

Last week the OPM finally, on its own initiative, made public a complete enumeration of dollar-a-year men on its staff.

Similarly, we were refused a list of employees of Miss Harriet Elliott's Defense Consumer's Division and their salaries without a formal written request. In contrast, the traditional practice of established agencies such as the State and War Departments is to publish the salaries of every official in the annual register.

Again, the RFC at first refused to reveal the salary of Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith's son-in-law, who is on its payroll, and it was forthcoming only after the question was put up to the RFC board and debated there.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, like the RFC, is ruled with an iron fist by Secretary Jesse Jones. Recently Carroll Wilson, executive of the Bureau, assembled all its employees and threaten-the current recruits have really taken it up, the public is likely to follow. Unless, of course, it is one of those familiarities allowed only to close friends.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● We are beginning to pay more attention to the problems of the middle-aged and elderly patient.
A specialty known as "geriatrics" is growing up which deals with this subject. All bodily conditions are different at the extremes of life and different, indeed, from questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

those in vigorous adult life. The middle-aged and elderly patient may have symptoms from a particular condition that are very different from the symptoms of that condition in younger life.
And besides that, they have special problems of their own.

These observations apply to disorders of the nervous system in those over fifty. Most nervous symptoms at this age are due to changes in the arteries of the central nervous system, particularly in the brain. The commonest serious complication of this is when one of the hardened arteries breaks and an apoplexy occurs.
Plenty of people get over apoplexies, however, and only a small percentage of them have the residual one-sided paralysis. A valued old friend of mine had a mild apoplec-tic attack fifteen years ago and has gone on ever since in spite of frank medical advice to the contrary, tending to the details of a large business.

The little losses of memory and habitual forgetfulness that descend upon some over fifty are undoubtedly due also to changes in the arteries of the brain. The blood sometimes flows sluggishly through quite important areas and their functional activity is diminished. Personality changes, moods, suddenly acquired prejudices against members of the family, have also an organic basis in poor circulation in certain locali-zations in the brain.

Tremor of Muscles

The most annoying of the symptoms of hardened arteries in the brain is the trembling and tremor of the muscles. These are often noticed only when a voluntary action is intended. I can tell the age of many of my correspondents by the handwriting. More amazing is the tremor that persists even when the individual is quiet. Some new remedies have been suggested for this condition which give it a better outlook than was once the case, but in the elderly, remedies do not always work so well as in the young.

This brings up the subject of the action of stimulating and depressing drugs in the elderly. Alcoholic beverages may act very peculiarly here. Many an aging gaffer who has been used to his drum before supper, finds it makes him so confused he has to give it up. Remedies intended to produce sleep may cause wild excitement in these subjects.

The digestion is not always up to par in them either, in spite of the persistence of appetite, and they may not absorb all the elements of a balanced diet even if they eat a well balanced diet. So nutritional deficiencies may cause mental confusion and neuralgias and peculiar sensations of the skin, and require reinforcement with the vitamins.

Fat:—"Please print in your column what you think of a diet for reducing of skimmed milk and bananas."

Answer:—This is the well known Harrop Diet and is very effective.
Dr. Harrop, of Baltimore, designed it in order to satisfy the two fundamental requirements of the reduction diet: (1) to have a balanced diet and (2) to have the meal satisfy the appetite.

A. L.:—"Should a doctor be consulted at the first sign of varicose veins or will resting prevent them from getting worse?"

Answer:—I do not believe that it is fair to say that a doctor should be consulted at the first sign of varicose veins and in the great majority of cases they never give any serious trouble. Rest and an elastic bandage may prevent progressive development for years.

seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents.
For any one pamphlet desired, send 10

"Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

TOM AND BETSY FORMAN inherit Halcyon Island from their father, Markham, who was found shot to death. Markham had established the spot as a "honeymoon isle," but his ideas had been opposed bitterly by crooked business associates who wanted to make it a base for smuggling aliens into the United States.
NATALIE SCHUYLER, moneyed society girl, and BROOKS MARCHBANKS, possessor of high social position, but not much money, are married. Starting on their honeymoon, they find a wrecked car in which are an injured boy and girl.
Discovering that they are without funds, Natalie sees to it that the newly-married couple.

CORALIE AND JOHN SIMPSON, are provided for. Coralie says that they were bound to Halcyon Island to spend their honeymoon. Natalie and Brooks change places with Coralie and John and decide to go to the honeymoon isle.

As Tom and Betsy are about to meet the first boatload of honeymooners arriving at Halcyon Island, Norton Blake, one of Markham's crooked business associates, lands and declares he wants to buy the young people's interest in the island.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

WITH BETSY'S hand in his, Tom led the way down the path to the pier. Blake stood for a long moment looking after them, his face dark and ugly.

Betsy shivered again as she and Tom stood on the pier while the first boatload of honeymooners arrived. "That man gives me a creepy sort of feeling," she confided. "As if I'd come along a garden path and all of a sudden almost stepped on a snake."

Tom laughed. "Poor Mr. Blake!
He thinks he's such a handsome brute, and such a devil with the ladies," he teased.

"Devil is right," said Betsy grimly.

By now the boat had tied up and the first of the passengers were coming ashore. There were only four of them, Tom and Betsy saw, a man who was frankly middle-aged, his portly build partly disguised by the well-cut white linen suit that he wore, an almost giddy band about his Panama hat. The lady he was so tenderly assisting to the pier was plump, blonde, rather heavily rouged and in her late thirties, for all her kittenishly coo manner.

"Mr. and Mrs. Forman, I presume," said the gentleman, having assisted his lady ashore. "May I present myself? Major William Edmonds, and the lady who did me the honor to become my wife."

"How do you do?" said Betsy pleasantly. "I'm Mrs. Forman, and this is my husband. We are very happy to have you here."

"How sweet of you!" cooed Mrs.
Edmonds, giving Betsy little more than a swift glance, her eyes turning at once to Tom and lingering as though pleased. "This too, TOO lovely spot! And your dear, kind

Mr. Markham—to be willing to have a lot of strangers here—"

Major Edmonds beamed happily behind her, yet there was somewhere in the back of his tired, kind eyes the faintest hint of a plea for understanding of his fluttering, girlish wife whom he quite obviously adored.

"I hope you will be quite comfortable in the cottage we've prepared for you," said Betsy, giving the major a friendly handshake.

"Oh, you mustn't worry about us, my dear. An old campaigner like me gets mighty few chances at anything as beautiful and as luxurious as Halcyon Island, I can assure you," said the major hand-somerly.

Mrs. Edmonds, her hand pos-sessedly through Tom's arm, was leading the way toward the path across the sand dunes, trailing behind her a rather heady scent of spicy sweetness. Betsy would have sworn that Mrs. Edmonds also trailed the lacy fluffiness of an evening gown, though in reality her frocks of powder-blue crepe was quite plain and well cut.

"Willie, dear," her voice trailed behind her, soft and sweet, but definitely with the expectation of being obeyed.

"Coming, dear," said the major hastily. Shouldering the two bags, he followed, with an almost apologetic glance at Betsy.

Betsy turned to the other couple who still stood on the pier. A small, cuddly sort of a blonde girl in a short, rather rumpled dark frock, her head bare, her sunny curls tangled in an enchantingly childlike confusion. Beside her, a tall, broad-shouldered, husky young fellow who looked as though he might have been far more at home in football tugs than in the gray slacks and blue pullover sweater he wore. His head was bare, too, and Betsy saw straw-colored, crisp locks that would not quite lie straight.

Before Betsy could speak, the girl steadied herself against the man's arm, lifted first one foot and then the other, gravely and thoroughly examining the scuffed, rather thin sole.

"It's funny," she mused, as though she spoke her thoughts aloud, "I'd have sworn they were gummy, since I've been ankle-deep in syrup and honeycomb for the past two and a half hours."

Betsy looked puzzled. The young man muttered something under his breath that sounded like, "For heaven's sake, behave yourself."

But the girl looked straight at Betsy and asked with bland sweetness, "What's the penalty for murder in this state?"

"I'm afraid I wouldn't know."

"Well, never mind. The judge will tell me," said the girl innocently.

"When I'm brought to the bar for murder of that blondine—er—damsel!" She nodded in the direction of Mrs. Edmonds.

Betsy laughed. "Have you known her long?" she asked, for want of anything better to say at the moment.

"For years and years and years," answered the girl grimly. "Since two-fifteen this afternoon when we met at the pier to wait for the boat.
I wonder now at my self-control that I didn't shove her off the pier.
It would have been justifiable, I do assure you."

"I suppose," said Betsy, grinning, "that she made a pass at your man?"

"Him?" the girl jerked an expressive thumb over her shoulder toward the tall, husky young man.
"Oh, no—she wouldn't dare. Bill's too smart for the likes of her. It takes nice old dodos like the major to fall for her line—"

"Pay her no mind at all, Mrs.
Forman. She's not used to it," the young man interrupted in the patient tone of one long resigned to the unexpected naughtiness of a badly brought-up child. "We're the Bill McKays. She's Terry; I'm Bill."

"And," stated Terry with an almost ominous calm, "I'll slug the first nit-wit who calls him Willie."

Betsy laughed. "Well, I should think you would," she answered promptly. "How are you, Bill?
Greetings to both of you—and welcome to Halcyon Island, and all the usual stuff of that sort."

Terry stared at her, wide blue eyes startled as though she noticed Betsy for the first time. She caught her breath and turned to Bill, saying hastily, in a tone of keen delight, "BILL! She's one of us! She's OUR kind of people!"

"Smile when you say that, angel-puss," Bill protested swiftly, throwing Betsy a conciliatory glance.

"Maybe she won't like it."

"Gosh!" said Terry joyously, and flung herself upon Betsy with a bear-like hug. "I had my heart set on a perfectly swell time down here —like the dumb doll I am. It hadn't occurred to me that there'd be creatures like the Edmonds dame down here—until I saw her. And then the awful thought swept over me that if there was one like her, there might be others. Coming over on the boat, I seriously thought of crawling overboard—only the water looked so wet. How old are you?"

Betsy blinked and chuckled.

"Twenty—do you mind?"

"I think it's swell," said Terry

Today's Horoscope

A year of steady progress and happiness is envisaged for those who are celebrating birthdays today. Their fortunes will be excellent, provided they are on their guard against attempted fraud or deception. A sweet and charming disposition will be the possession of the child who is born on this date. He or she will be popular and successful, also musical, artistic and literary achievements are probable. A happy marriage is foreseen.

Von Bora Musical Tea Entertains 75 Guests

Splendid Program Offered During Evening

Masses of magnolia blossoms and forsythia together with Easter lilies and bowls of snapdragons and daffodils made a beautiful spring setting for the musical tea of the Von Bora Society of the Trinity Lutheran Church Wednesday in the parish house. More than 75 guests were entertained during the pleasant evening.

Carl Leist opened the formal program with two solos, "Amapola" and "Come to the Fair". Mrs. Karl Herrmann playing his accompaniments. Miss Ethyl May impressed the audience with her excellent marimba solos, playing Kreisler's "Liebesfreude" and "Gingerette", with Miss Anna Schleyer at the piano. Mrs. Linden Baughman's two lovely solos were "Star Eyes" and "May Day Carol". Mrs. Herrmann playing the accompaniments.

Mendelssohn's "Nocturne" and "Fire Dance" by Heuter were the piano solos beautifully played by Miss Ruth Esther Blum. The two selections by the Von Bora quintet were "Greeting to Spring", Johann Strauss, and "Because", by Guy d'Hardelot. The quintet was comprised of Mrs. Carl Leist, Mrs. Walter Heise, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. Dudley Carpenter and Mrs. George Green.

Miss May concluded the outstanding entertainment with two unaccompanied marimba solos, "Star Dust" and "When You and I Were Young, Maggie".

Mrs. James Carpenter presented the program which had been arranged by Mrs. Luther Bower and Mrs. Dudley Carpenter.

A social half-hour around the tea table concluded the evening. A large bowl of daffodils and yellow snapdragons centered the table set in the form of a cross. Yellow tapers in tall crystal holders completed the decorations. Mrs. Robert L. Brehmer and Mrs. Orrin Brown presided at the silver tea and coffee services. Mrs. H. M. Crites and Mrs. Frank Webb serving. Others assisting were Mrs. Ralph Ward, Mrs. Ralph Beck, Mrs. Orville Marion and Miss Mary Weffler.

The beautiful decorations were arranged by Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, chairman, and her committee, Mrs. John Walters, Mrs. Orrin Brown, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Clarence Wolf, Mrs. Crites, Miss Catherine Fischer, Mrs. Herrmann and Mrs. Brehmer.

Mrs. John Seall as chairman of the kitchen committee was assisted by Miss Magdalene Trump, Mrs. Edward Schreiner, Mrs. Robert Wilkinson, Mrs. Emerson Martin, Mrs. Vernon Shellhammer and Mrs. Lena Thatcher.

2 tbsps. chopped pimento
1/2 pt. drained oysters cut in half 3/4 tsp. salt 1 cp. soft buttered bread crumbs
1/4 tsp. dry mustard
Melt fat in saucepan, add flour and stir to make smooth paste. Add milk, gradually and cook until sauce is smooth and thick, about 5 minutes. Add grated cheese, pimento, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper and cook, stirring occasionally, until smooth and well blended, then add ham and oysters, mix lightly and pour into well-greased casserole. Top with buttered crumbs and bake in hot oven (400 F.) for about 20 minutes. Serves 8.

With Sen. Harrison (D) Miss., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, who is expected to return to Washington before senate action begins. House passage of a tax bill, it was indicated, may be accomplished by June 1.

George suggested that one general tax bill be enacted. Some administration officials have talked of two tax bills, one to be enacted late in the year when the full picture of defense expenditures is revealed.

Incomes Studied

Treasury officials, it was reported authoritatively, are considering a lowering of exemptions from income tax. They now are $800 for single people and $2,000 for married persons. A lowering not only would make people "tax conscious" but would result in increases all along the line.

Increases in the individual normal income tax rate from the present four percent to either eight or 10 percent, a boost in surtaxes, higher corporation and excess profits taxes also were forecast by many congressional leaders in taxation.

After West led the club K against this precariously doubled contract, it seemed to the kibitzer that South had no chance to keep from being set, especially since he could see East's hand. Two losers in the trump suit and one each in hearts and clubs appeared a certainty. But co-operation by East and West enabled South to make it.

Dummy's club A won the opening trick, then the spade 3 was sent to the J and A. East had played his 3 on the club lead, so West now led his heart J to South's A. The spade 10 was then led, East ducking, and the spade 5 to the K. This left East with the high trump, and a chance for immediate tricks in hearts and clubs.

Next the declarer ran his diamonds. East followed on the first two and discarded clubs on the next two, hating to use up his high trump unless to capture a hostile trump. When the fifth diamond, dummy's 7, was led, East decided to ruff with his Q. South, however, discarded his club 9 so that, so that the only other trick East could get was his heart Q. He had waited too long to use the high trump for ruffing.

FRENCH SHOWING MORE HOPE FOR ALLIED VICTORY

WASHINGTON, April 17—Increasingly widespread demonstrations in favor of the United States and Great Britain are occurring in both occupied and unoccupied France, according to reports reaching Washington today.

The reports indicate the vast majority of the people in France favor the Allied cause and are passively resisting attempts to swing them over to the axis.

This is said to be particularly so in the case of the French youth in occupied territory who risk swift vengeance from the German military authorities to write on the walls of many towns in France pro-American and pro-British inscriptions.

Recent developments, such as the passage of the lend-lease bill, seizure of Italo-German ships in American waters and the resistance of Yugoslavia and Greece all have brought about a resurgence of hope among the French people for delivery from Germany, according to the report.

SUSPECTS GRAB OFFICER'S GUN, MAKE GETAWAY

CINCINNATI, April 17—Robert Coleman, 23-year-old Glendale policeman, was disarmed and locked in his own jail today by two assailants who escaped in a stolen automobile.

Suspicious of 1940 license plates on an automobile, Coleman questioned the two men in the Glendale police station. One of them succeeded in snatching Coleman's gun and ordered the policeman into a cell, locking the door after him.

The pair fled, leaving behind two woman companions who gave their names as Philomena Brockman, 29, and Phyllis Edwards, 25. The women said they had been injured earlier in a wreck of an automobile driven by the two men, but they refused to divulge the identities of the men.

Coleman was rescued from the jail cell by Marshal Leigh Latta, who had been sleeping above the jail.

COMMERCIAL POINT

R. A. Francis was on the sick list Monday.

Commercial Point—Ohio State University's Symphonic Choir which comes to Scioto Township High School, Commercial Point, O., for a concert on April 23, at 8 o'clock is highly recommended to local music-lovers by music directors and critics in other cities where the group has been heard.

STUKAS ATTACK ISLE'S CAPITAL

of the casualties and damage cannot be estimated.

But observers expressed belief that more incendiary bombs were dropped on the city than during the famous "fire blitz" of December 29—and that probably more high explosives were dropped than even at the height of the heaviest attacks last September.

Touring the London area early this morning I saw many avenues and streets severely damaged, with debris sprawling in all directions.

Smashed glass from shop windows was piled high in gutters. Many fires were still smoldering as late as 10:30 a. m. today.

People Still Trapped

At that hour hundreds of fire fighters, air raid wardens and home guards were still struggling to extricate people trapped in the ruins of their homes and shelters.

One bomb scored a direct hit on a club housing some troops from overseas.

The building was wrecked and it was feared that some of those inside were killed, although many escaped—seemingly by some fluke of nature.

One man was blown through a fifth-floor window to the street, but suffered only slight bruises.

This morning many roadways were criss-crossed with fire hoses and many sections of the city where delayed action bombs fell were roped off.

Many Walk To Work

Transport systems were badly hit, forcing many factory and office workers to hitch-hike to work, thousands of them arriving late. Others were forced to give up all attempts to get to their offices or plants.

In one district I saw priests in their shirt-sleeves and nuns ignore all police warnings and dash into crumbling church rooms to recover what was left of Holy relics.

Use of the Stukas brought a new experience to roof-top fire watchers who saw the city illuminated brightly by flares and then heard the roaring zoom of the Stukas as they went into their death-dealing dives.

At the lowest possible altitude they released their bombs, which screamed down and burst with deafening detonations.

In one district four persons were killed and many more injured when a brick surface shelter was hit squarely.

Fire bombs first ringed the city with flames, which served as beacons for the diving Stukas. Fire fighters worked heroically to douse the incendiaries, but frequently the explosives rained down so fast and in such numbers that the firemen had difficulty keeping up with the fires. Many fire fighters were killed or injured by explosives while struggling with the incendiary flames.

Civilians Sing

Throughout it all was the amazing fortitude of London's civilians. As I walked through bomb-shattered streets during the eight-hour ordeal I passed huge shelters where the walls and floors trembled as huge bombs burst nearby.

But these same shelters rang with songs... "There'll always be an England"... "The King is Still in London"...

In the shelters and at first aid stations doctors and nurses worked like Trojans, caring for the wounded.

BERLIN, April 17—Thousands of houses and other buildings in London "crumbled like cards" during last night's terrific German air raid on the British capital, German authorities declared today.

The attack, heaviest yet leveled against London by the Luftwaffe, was officially described as a blow "in retaliation for the RAF attack on Berlin last week."

German authorities announced 80 tremendous conflagrations and a large number of lesser fires started in London during last night's attack.

Several explosions in London were so violent, it was stated, that

FRENCH SHOWING MORE HOPE FOR ALLIED VICTORY

WASHINGTON, April 17—Increasingly widespread demonstrations in favor of the United States and Great Britain are occurring in both occupied and unoccupied France, according to reports reaching Washington today.

The reports indicate the vast majority of the people in France favor the Allied cause and are passively resisting attempts to swing them over to the axis.

This is said to be particularly so in the case of the French youth in occupied territory who risk swift vengeance from the German military authorities to write on the walls of many towns in France pro-American and pro-British inscriptions.

Recent developments, such as the passage of the lend-lease bill, seizure of Italo-German ships in American waters and the resistance of Yugoslavia and Greece all have brought about a resurgence of hope among the French people for delivery from Germany, according to the report.

SUSPECTS GRAB OFFICER'S GUN, MAKE GETAWAY

CINCINNATI, April 17—Robert Coleman, 28-year-old Glendale policeman, was disarmed and locked in his own jail today by two assailants who escaped in a stolen automobile.

Suspicious of 1940 license plates on an automobile, Coleman questioned the two men in the Glendale police station. One of them succeeded in snatching Coleman's gun and ordered the policeman into a cell, locking the door after him.

The pair fled, leaving behind two woman companions who gave their names as Philomena Brockman, 29, and Phyllis Edwards, 25. The women said they had been injured earlier in a wreck of an automobile driven by the two men, but they refused to divulge the identities of the men.

Coleman was rescued from the jail cell by Marshal Leigh Latta, who had been sleeping above the jail.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

THEY MAY FOOL YOU

IF YOU see enough bridge by other people, you will cease being positive about what can and cannot be done on a certain deal. They will get defeated on contracts you considered sure things, and will make contracts you thought were impossible. The thing that changes the situation may not be either spectacularly fine bridge or sensationally bad. It may merely be some very ordinary act which simply did not occur to you.

After West led the club K against this precariously doubled contract, it seemed to the kibitzer that South had no chance to keep from being set, especially since he could see East's hand. Two losers in the trump suit and one each in hearts and clubs appeared a certainty. But co-operation by East and West enabled South to make it.

Next the declarer ran his diamonds. East followed on the first two and discarded clubs on the next two, hating to use up his high trump unless to capture a hostile trump. When the fifth diamond, dummy's 7, was led, East decided to ruff with his Q. South, however, discarded his club 9 so that, so that the only other trick East could get was his heart Q. He had waited too long to use the high trump for ruffing.

Ohio State University's Symphonic Choir which comes to Scioto Township High School, Commercial Point, O., for a concert on April 23, at 8 o'clock is highly recommended to local music-lovers by music directors and critics in other cities where the group has been heard.

After a recent engagement at Otterbein College, Westerville, O., Dr. L. L. Shackson, director of music education at that institution, said: "The splendid concert was one of those high points in a year's program of musical events which left lasting impression on students and townspeople alike. The program was sufficiently varied to be interesting to a large audience, yet balanced so as to give a sense of completeness."

That the performance of this group of musicians has an appeal to varied audiences is evident in the comment of Sheldon Swickard, music supervisor in the small Ohio city of Waynesfield, O., where the choir was heard a few months ago. Mr. Swickard said: "The excellent selection of numbers from the best choral literature of all times, the rich quality of the voices, beautifully blended, and the true musicianship of the choir was a real inspiration to everyone."

Ralph L. Sanders, dean of music at Indiana University, Bloomington, has described the Ohio

of the casualties and damage cannot be estimated.

But observers expressed belief that more incendiary bombs were dropped on the city than during the famous "fire blitz" of December 29—and that probably more high explosives were dropped than even at the height of the heaviest attacks last September.

Touring the London area early this morning I saw many avenues and streets severely damaged, with debris sprawling in all directions.

Smashed glass from shop windows was piled high in gutters. Many fires were still smouldering as late as 10:30 a. m. today.

People Still Trapped

At that hour hundreds of fire fighters, air raid wardens and home guards were still struggling to extricate people trapped in the ruins of their homes and shelters.

One bomb scored a direct hit on a club housing some troops from overseas.

The building was wrecked and it was feared that some of those inside were killed, although many escaped—seemingly by some fluke of nature.

One man was blown through a fifth-floor window to the street, but suffered only slight bruises.

This morning many roadways were criss-crossed with fire hoses and many sections of the city where delayed action bombs fell were roped off.

Many Walk To Work

Transport systems were badly hit, forcing many factory and office workers to hitch-hike to work, thousands of them arriving late. Others were forced to give up all attempts to get to their offices or plants.

As in many previous attacks on London, numerous churches took a severe pounding. Many badly damaged in previous raids were hit again—and now only their bare shells are left standing.

In one district I saw priests in their shirt-sleeves and nuns ignore all police warnings and dash into crumbling church rooms to recover what was left of Holy relics.

Use of the Stukas brought a new experience to roof-top fire watchers who saw the city illuminated brightly by flares and then heard the roaring zoom of the Stukas as they went into their death-dealing dives.

At the lowest possible altitude they released their bombs, which screamed down and burst with deafening detonations.

In one district four persons were killed and many more injured when a brick surface shelter was hit squarely.

Fire bombs first ringed the city with flames, which served as beacons for the diving Stukas. Fire fighters worked heroically to douse the incendiaries, but frequently the explosives rained down so fast and in such numbers that the firemen had difficulty keeping up with the fires. Many fire fighters were killed or injured by explosives while struggling with the incendiary flames.

Civilians Sing

Throughout it all was the amazing fortitude of London's civilians.

As I walked through bomb-shattered streets during the eight-hour ordeal I passed huge shelters where the walls and floors trembled as huge bombs burst nearby.

But these same shelters rang with songs... "There'll always be an England"... "The King is Still in London"...

In the shelters and at first aid stations doctors and nurses worked like Trojans, caring for the wounded.

BERLIN, April 17—Thousands of houses and other buildings in London "crumbled like cards" during last night's terrific German air raid on the British capital, German authorities declared today.

The attack, heaviest yet leveled against London by the Luftwaffe, was officially described as a blow "in retaliation for the RAF attack on Berlin last week." (Editor's Note: The British raid last week spread destruction in the heart of Berlin, gutting and wrecking the State Opera, the historic Prussian State Library and other famous landmarks in the center of the German capital.)

German authorities announced 80 tremendous conflagrations and a large number of lesser fires started in London during last night's attack.

Several explosions in London were so violent, it was stated, that they were observed by members of German artillery batteries on the French Channel coast.

The Tilbury docks and the Chatham section suffered severely from German bombs, the announcement added.

The attack on London was declared to have been carried out under conditions of perfect visibility.

Several hundred bombers participated and thousands of the heaviest calibre explosives and hundreds of incendiaries were dropped, chiefly on harbor facilities in the London dock area and Thames Estuary region, German officials said.

Another announcement said that British bombers penetrated northern Germany at several points during the night and attempted to attack coastal towns, but caused only slight damage.

JUDGE McCLELLAND ON ROTARY CLUB PROGRAM

Cloya P. McClelland, probate judge of Franklin County, told of early Ohio history in connection with the fugitive slave law at the Rotary luncheon Thursday noon in the American Hotel Hurricane.

Judge McClelland reviewed the Henry Bushnell case, tried before Chief Justice of the Ohio Supreme Court Joseph R. Swan. In his decision, Justice Swan supported the federal government in enforcing the fugitive slave law.

Leland S. McClelland, son of the probate judge, was introduced at the meeting.

Turner To Seek First Red Win

Milkman To Face Bill McGhee; Cooper Bests Vandy; Al Milnar Stars

CINCINNATI, April 17—Milkman Jim Turner was to try to do today what Paul Derringer and Johnny Vander Meer failed to do against the St. Louis Cardinals—put the World Champion Cincinnati Reds in the win column for the first time in the 1941 season.

Although tipped to repeat their national league triumph, the Reds have dropped two straight games to the Cards, who have been playing like the famed "Gas House Gang" of old.

Yesterday Vander Meer pitched credible ball, striking out eight Cards and allowing seven hits, but Mort Cooper was just a little better, and the Cards took the 4-to-2 decision. Both teams shoved over two counters in the second stanza, and from there to the ninth canto it was a de luxe hurlers' battle.

In the last frame, however, the Cards tallied the two winning counters on Crepi's double, Cooper's infield hit, and Brown's two-bagger to right.

The game's 12 bingles were scattered among 12 players. Cooper allowed only five safeties. Facing Turner in today's finale of the three-game series will be "Fibber" McGee.

RELAY TEST AT MANSFIELD TO ATTRACT STARS

MANSFIELD, April 17 — With schools already in the fold and still others to come, Harry Me-hock, director of the Mansfield Relays, predicted today that the 15th annual event would be "the greatest of them all."

The annual classic, scheduled for Saturday at the Mansfield high school stadium, has attracted entries from Kentucky, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

Cleveland East Tech, defending champion and favorite again this year, is heading the list of 10 Cleveland schools in the big affair, while other schools from every point of Ohio are sending their athletes in hopes of coping some of the glory.

Entries to date include: Lorain, Elyria, Marion Harding, Erie, Pa., Strong, Vincent, Sandusky, Mansfield, Coventry, Plymouth, Mechanicsburg, Madison, Springfield, Akron South, Mingo Junction, Columbiana, Mentor, Rome, Pettisville, Toledo DeVilliss, Youngstown Rayen, Louisville, Struthers, Columbus East, Toledo Scott, East Palestine, Parkersburg, W. Va., Hoover and Flint, Mich.

Akron Buchtel, Jackson Amsden, Fremont Ross, Erie, Pa., Academy, Dayton Stivers, Fernside, Mich., Lima Central, Newark, Akron East, Salem, Columbus Central, Akron North, Donora, Pa., Canton McKinley, Akron Garfield, Columbus North, Columbus South, Youngstown Boardman, Ashland, Republic, Bellevue, Warren Harding, Castalia and Ashtabula, Newport, Ky., and the following entries from Pennsylvania, Derry Township, Meadville, Mount Lebanon, Wilksburg, Clairton and Geneva.

DETROIT'S STAR FACES MEDICOS FOR FINAL TEST

DETROIT, April 17—Hank Greenberg, the American League's most valuable ball player, comes home tomorrow to keep a date in Briggs Stadium with the Detroit Tigers against the Cleveland Indians and also his local draft board.

Hank has been ordered by his draft board to appear in a Detroit hospital for a complete physical examination by his board's medical advisory board. The medical board will either sustain or reverse a decision made by a Florida doctor who recommended that Hank be deferred from army service because of flat feet.

Pending the new examination, Hank has been classified in 1A—available for immediate service.

If it develops that the big left fielder must go into the army, it is highly possible that he will be inducted May 7.

OHIO STATE HARRIERS TOO GOOD FOR OHIO U.

COLUMBUS, April 17—Taking all but three of 15 firsts, the Ohio State University scanti-clads today placed on the records an overwhelming 89-42 victory over the Ohio University tracksters.

Calls Turner

DEACON Bill McKeehie, (above) manager of the World's Champion Cincinnati Reds, was expected to call on Milkman Jim Turner this afternoon as the champions engaged the St. Louis Cardinals in their third game. The Cards have already bumped off Paul Derringer and Johnny Vander Meer in the season's first two games.

A. A. OUTFITS TO BEGIN RACE

Columbus Team Nominated As One To Beat; Three Hurlers Strong

By Larry Newman
COLUMBUS, April 17—With the Columbus Red Birds nominated as the team to beat to win the championship, the eight teams of the American Baseball Association teed off today on the four eastern clubs' home lots.

Here's how the teams paired off for the opening day ceremonies: Kansas City at Louisville; Milwaukee at Indianapolis; St. Paul at Columbus, and Minneapolis at Toledo.

Manager Burt Shotton has three great twirlers for the Red Bird cause in Murray Dickson, Harry Brecheen and Clarence "Red" Barrett, along with a strong supporting cast. The Columbus team put on a great finish last season after getting away to a poor start.

The Louisville-Kansas City game at Parkway Field in Louisville and the Milwaukee invasion of Indianapolis drew considerable interest. The Colonels, winner of the 1940 playoff, have another strong club as have the Blues, the 1939 and 1940 pennant winners.

Kansas City was riddled by the New York Yankees when the great infield combination of Phil Rizzuto, Gerald Priddy and John Sturm moved up. However, Mike Chartax, a heavy hitter, George Barley, a 15-game winner in the International loop last season and Don Hendrickson, back from the Yanks, may fill the gap caused by the loss of last year's trio.

The tilt between the Indians and the Brewers attracted attention because of the "brothers game." The Indians are managed by Wade Kilgus, while his brothers, Bill, pilots the Brewers.

Minneapolis apparently has another strong team offensively, with such stalwarts as Huck Geary, Zeke Bonura and Otto Danning in uniform. Milwaukee should be able to get some help from the major leagues because of Manager Killifer's former connections.

St. Paul will miss the pitching of Bill Swift, now with the Brooklyn Dodgers, but Oral Hindenbrand, former Yankee property, and Clay Smith, addition from Detroit, should fill the vacancy. Such veterans as Ollie Bejma, George Stumpf, Red Kress and Gil English will be with St. Paul, along with a good, young first baseman, Jesse Newman.

HEROES AND GOATS

HEROES: Dick Siebert, Athletics, whose two homers helped crush Yankees. Al Milnar, Indians, who pitched two hit shutouts against White Sox. Manuel Salvo, Bees, who held Phils to three hits. Elden Auker, Browns, who gave Tigers only four hits.

GOATS: Pee-wee Reese, Dodgers, whose two errors cost Dodgers game with Giants. Buck Newsom, Tigers, who was chased under a seven-run bombardment by the Browns. Eddie Joost, Reds, whose wild throw helped Cardinals win.

TIGER RUNNERS WIN MEET FROM M'CLAIN SQUAD

Score Of 47-21 Results; Several Events Off Because Of Rain

Circleville High runners and jumpers defeated Greenfield McClain, Wednesday, in a 47 to 21 dual meet, featured by slow times because of a wet course. The meet was abbreviated because of a downpour, at least two of the events being run during the rain.

Several contests, including mile relay, high jump, broad jump, discus, shot put and low hurdles, were called off because of the rain.

A pair of Pauls, Seymour and Jackson, did most of Circleville's point scoring, the former winning top position in the half mile and the mile and the latter being on top in the 100 and 220 yard dash.

The summary:
Half Mile: 1. Seymour, C. 2:25 minutes; 2. Haywood Riley, G. 3. Sabine, C.

Mile Run: 1. Seymour, C. 5:04 minutes; 2. Herschel Riley, G. 3. Coffland, C.

One-Half Mile Relay: Won by Circleville: Hatzog, Siegwald, Jackson, Wolf. 1 minute 49.5 seconds.

Pole Vault: 1. Hatzog, C. 2. Hope, G. 3. Siegwald, C. 8 feet 6 inches.

100 Yard Dash: 1. Jackson, C. Siegwald, C. 3. Schmidt, G. 11.3 seconds.

220 Yard Dash: 1. Jackson, C. 2. Wolf, C. 3. Callon, G. 26.2 seconds.

440 Yard Dash: 1. Herschel Riley, G. 2. Shea, C. 3. Smallwood, C. 61 seconds.

High Hurdles: 1. Davis, G. 2. Smallwood, C. 3. Jonnes, C. 21.6 seconds.

The next Circleville meet will be against Columbus Holy Rosary next week.

JUNE TITLE TILT FOR BILLY CONN FAILS TO CLICK

NEW YORK, April 17—Negotiations on the proposed heavyweight title bout between Champion Joe Louis and Billy Conn failed to pan out today after Johnny Ray, Conn's pilot, spurned a July date in lieu of a June bout as originally planned by Promoter Mike Jacobs.

Ray informed Jacobs that he would accept a July date on the condition that promoter would stage a return match between Conn and Bob Pastor in Pittsburgh in May or June. James J. Johnston, Pastor's manager, declined the offer.

Johnston said he planned to hold Jacobs to his original agreement to match Pastor with Louis in Los Angeles on July 21. There is no indication, at present, who Jacobs plans to match with Louis in June. Ray Carlen is still insisting on a Louis fight for Lou Nova in June.

TWO TEAMS MISS SELECT LIST BY NARROW EDGES

ST. PAUL, April 17—Keglers from Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin were scheduled to roll in the team event today at the American Bowling Congress. The squads listed for action were from Detroit and Saginaw, Mich., Milwaukee and Rhinelander, Wis., and Chicago and Joliet, Ill.

Last night, five-man teams from Akron, O., and St. Paul narrowly missed hitting into the first ten among the leaders. The M. O'Neill five of Akron settled for 2,923, and the Hammis of St. Paul scored 2,913.

Chagrined Dodger Fans Ridicule Team In Loss

By Jack Slinger
NEW YORK, April 17—Brooklyn's stunning collapse in the first two games of the season against the inspired Giants couldn't possibly have occurred to the old Dodgers of the whimsical "daffy" era. For they couldn't read. We do not propose to hold any brief in support of illiteracy, but it seems quite evident today that Durocher's Darlings actually believed all those nice things they read about themselves in the papers.

It seems to us that wise, old Gabby Hartnett diagnosed the Dodgers correctly when he remarked, acidly:

If the Dodgers had dusted off the Giants, as anticipated, Leland Stanford MacPhail would not only have had to enlarge Ebbets Field for the world's series, but also to make room for his high-salaried slaves' heads. However, everything returned to normal yesterday. The Dodgers were actually ridiculed by 16,000 raucous, if chagrined, rooters—and that's the first broad hint that the lousy, old days are back.

There's nothing chronically wrong with Larry's MacPhailures. It's too classy a ball club to continue to play the brand of baseball it has played to date. Walter Kirby Higbee, the fabulous fireballer, making his debut before the Canarsie clientele, must have thought he was back pitching for the Phillies yesterday. The Dodgers made four grievous errors behind him, which deprived him of a shutout and presented the Giants with three unearned runs, their total for the afternoon.

An investigation may reveal, as suspected, that all the Brooklyn infielders, notably the unfortunate Pee Wee Reese, are playing with ten thumbs and two left feet. As in the opener, the Brooklyn Baby Snooks contributed the misplay which directly enabled the Giants to score the winning runs. With two out and two men on in the fifth inning and the Dodgers leading 1-0, Reese booted Whitehead's easy grounder which should have retired the side. Instead, Harry Danning stepped up and slashed a hit to center, scoring two runs for the winning margin. Which may be one reason why they are singing the "horse" Wessel song in Harlem today.

The Friendship Class of the Presbyterian Church met Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Hutchins. After a short business meeting the evening was spent in games. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins and Mrs. Boyd Young to the Rev. and Mrs. Clarence Stewart, Mrs. Albert Reams, Lewis Ream, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Abbott and daughter, Roberta, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Solt, son Harold, Mrs. Olive Corder, Mrs. Oscar Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hugh and daughter, Carolyn, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Barr. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Barr.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Griner, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Kinser daughters, Vivian and Martha Jean, were recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kinser. Their evening guests were Mr. and Mrs. Everett Phillip, sons Joel and Glenn.

Mrs. Jake Campbell of Lancaster was the week end guest of Mrs. Maggie Campbell and family. Their Sunday dinner guests included Mr. and Mrs. Jake Campbell. The afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. Perry Campbell and Mrs. Anna Freese of Stoutsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Armstrong, daughters Marilyn and Louise, were the Sunday dinner guests of her mother, Mrs. Will Hartman of Lancaster.

The Rev. and Mrs. Willis Bishop (Marybelle Campbell) of Stoutsville are the parents of a baby boy born Monday, April 14.

The Cantata, "Palms of Victory" under the direction of Mrs. John Wilson, with Mrs. Frank Kull and the Rev. Martin L. Mickey as readers, was ably presented by the Cedar Hill Evangelical Church, Sunday.

Mrs. Lillian Warner, daughter Irene, of Lancaster arranged a family dinner Sunday honoring her mother, Mrs. John Potts on her birthday anniversary. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. John Potts, son Joe, and Mrs. Warner and daughter.

The Cedar Hill Evangelical Church met with Mrs. Laura Thomas Thursday. Mrs. Clara Spangler was the leader and opened the program with devotionals; song, "In Christ There is no East or West"; the group; scripture Psalm 104, Mrs. Ethel Riegel; responsive reading; playlet, "The Higher Choice," by Edna Huffer, Marie Williamson, Mildred Kull, Effie Barr and the Rev. Mr. Mickey; comments on interracial understanding, the leader; lesson study, "Move On, Youth"; Mrs. Corrinth Campbell; song, "This is My Father's World"; the group; prayer, Maggie Lower. The business session was conducted by Ethel Riegel. It was decided to entertain the Mission Circle at the May meeting at the home of Mrs. Flota Riegel. Reports from the Missionary Rally in Columbus were made.

Mrs. Edgar Ritchie and family and Mrs. Clarence Swinehart, motored to Columbus Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sheline. They were also guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Swinehart and twin baby daughters.

Turner To Seek First Red Win

Milkman To Face Bill McGhee; Cooper Bests Vandy; Al Milnar Stars

CINCINNATI, April 17—Milkman Jim Turner was to try to do today what Paul Derringer and Johnny Vander Meer failed to do against the St. Louis Cardinals—put the World Champion Cincinnati Reds in the win column for the first time in the 1941 season.

Although tipped to repeat their national league triumph, the Reds have dropped two straight games to the Cards, who have been playing like the famed "Gas House Gang" of old.

Yesterday Vander Meer pitched credible ball, striking out eight Cards and allowing seven hits, but Mort Cooper was just a little better, and the Cards took the 4-to-2 decision. Both teams shovelled over two counters in the second stanza, and from there to the ninth canto it was a de luxe hurlers' battle.

In the last frame, however, the Cards tallied the two winning counters on Crespi's double, Cooper's infield hit, and Brown's two-bagger to right.

The game's 12 bingles were scattered among 12 players. Cooper allowed only five safeties. Facing Turner in today's finale of the three-game series will be "Fibber" McGee.

Calls Turner

DEACON Bill McKechnie, (above) manager of the World's Champion Cincinnati Reds, was expected to call on Milkman Jim Turner this afternoon as the champions engaged the St. Louis Cardinals in their third game. The Cards have already bumped off Paul Derringer and Johnny Vander Meer in the season's first two games.

Columbus Team Nominated As One To Beat; Three Hurlers Strong

By Larry Newman
COLUMBUS, April 17—With the Columbus Red Birds nominated as the team to beat to win the championship, the eight teams of the American Baseball Association teed off today on the four eastern clubs' home lots.

Here's how the teams paired off for the opening day ceremonies: Kansas City at Louisville; Milwaukee at Indianapolis; St. Paul at Columbus, and Minneapolis at Toledo.

Manager Burt Shotton has three great twirlers for the Red Bird cause in Murray Dickson, Harry Brecheen and Clarence "Red" Barrett, along with a strong supporting cast. The Columbus team put on a great finish last season after getting away to a poor start.

The Louisville-Kansas City game at Parkway Field in Louisville and the Milwaukee invasion of Indianapolis drew considerable interest. The Colonels, winner of the 1940 playoff, have another strong club as have the Blues, the 1939 and 1940 pennant winners.

Kansas City was riddled by the New York Yankees when the great infield combination of Phil Rizzuto, Gerald Priddy and John Sturtz moved up. However, Mike Chartax, a heavy hitter, George Barley, a 15-game winner in the International league last season and Don Hendrickson, back from the Yanks, may fill the gap caused by the loss of last year's trio.

The tilt between the Indians and the Brewers attracted attention because of the "brothers duel." The Indians are managed by Wade Killifer, while his brother, Bill, pilots the Brewers.

Minneapolis apparently has another strong team offensively, with such stalwarts as Huck Geary, Zeke Bonura and Otto Danning in uniform. Milwaukee should be able to get some help from the major leagues because of Manager Killifer's former connections.

St. Paul will miss the pitching of Bill Swift, now with the Brooklyn Dodgers, but Oral Hindenbrand, former Yankee property, and Clay Smith, addition from Detroit, should fill the vacancy. Such veterans as Ollie Bejma, George Stump, Red Kress and Gil Englich will be with St. Paul, along with a good, young first baseman, Jesse Newman.

HEROES AND GOATS

HEROES: Dick Siebert, Athletics, whose two homers helped crush Yankees. Al Milnar, Indians, who pitched two hit shutouts against White Sox. Manuel Salvo, Bees, who held Phils to three hits. Elden Auker, Browns, who gave Tigers only four hits.

GOATS: Peeewe Evers, Dodgers, whose two errors cost Dodgers game with Giants. Buck Newsom, Tigers, who was chased under a seven-run bombardment by the Browns. Eddie Joost, Reds, whose wild throw helped Cardinals win.

TIGER RUNNERS WIN. MEET FROM M'CLAIN SQUAD

Score Of 47-21 Results; Several Events Off Because Of Rain

Circleville High runners and jumpers defeated Greenfield McClain, Wednesday, in a 47 to 21 dual meet, featured by slow times because of a wet course. The meet was abbreviated because of a downpour, at least two of the events being run during the rain.

Several contests, including mile relay, high jump, broad jump, discus, shot put and low hurdles, were called off because of the rain.

A pair of Pauls, Seymour and Jackson, did most of Circleville's point scoring, the former winning top position in the half mile and the mile and the latter being on top in the 100 and 220 yard dash.

The summary:
Half Mile: 1. Seymour, C. 2:25 minutes; 2. Haywood Riley, G. 3; Sabine, C.
Mile Run: 1. Seymour, C. 5:04 minutes; 2. Herschel Riley, G. 3; Coffland, C.

One-Half Mile Relay: Won by Circleville: Hatzo, Siegwald, Jackson, Wolf; 1 minute 49.5 seconds.

Pole Vault: 1. Hatzo, C. 2; Hope, G. 3; Siegwald, C. 8 feet 6 inches.

100 Yard Dash: 1. Jackson, C; Siegwald, C. 3; Schmidt, G. 11.3 seconds.

220 Yard Dash: 1. Jackson, C; 2. Wolf, C. 3; Callon, G. 26.2 seconds.

440 Yard Dash: 1. Herschel Riley, G. 2; Shea, C. 3; Smallwood, G. 61 seconds.

High Hurdles: 1. Davis, G. 2; Smallwood, C. 3; Jonnes, C. 21.6 seconds.

The next Circleville meet will be against Columbus Holy Rosary next week.

JUNE TITLE TILT FOR BILLY CONN FAILS TO CLICK

NEW YORK, April 17—Negotiations on the proposed heavyweight title bout between Champion Joe Louis and Billy Conn failed to pan out today after Johnny Ray, Conn's pilot, spurned a July date in lieu of a June bout as originally planned by Promoter Mike Jacobs.

Ray informed Jacobs that he would accept a July date on the condition that promoter would stage a return match between Conn and Bob Pastor in Pittsburgh in May or June. James J. Johnston, Pastor's manager, declined the offer.

Johnston said he planned to hold Jacobs to his original agreement to match Pastor with Louis in Los Angeles on July 21. There is no indication, at present, who Jacobs plans to match with Louis in June. Ray Carlen is still insisting on a Louis fight for Lou Nova in June.

TWO TEAMS MISS SELECT LIST BY NARROW EDGES

ST. PAUL, April 17—Keglers from Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin were scheduled to roll in the team event today at the American Bowling Congress. The squads listed for action were from Detroit and Saginaw, Mich., Milwaukee and Rhinelander, Wis., and Chicago and Joliet, Ill.

Last night, five-man teams from Akron, O., and St. Paul narrowly missed hitting into the first ten among the leaders. The M. O'Neill five of Akron settled for 2,923, and the Hammis of St. Paul scored 2,913.

Chagrined Dodger Fans Ridicule Team In Loss

By Jack Singer

NEW YORK, April 17—Brooklyn's stunning collapse in the first two games of the season against the inspired Giants couldn't possibly have occurred to the old Dodgers of the whimsical "daffy" era. For they couldn't read. We do not propose to hold any brief in support of illiteracy, but it seems quite evident today that Durocher's Darlings actually believed all those nice things they read about themselves in the papers.

It seems to us that wise, old Gabby Hartnett diagnosed the Dodgers correctly when he remarked, acidly:

"All those guys thought they had to do to win was throw their gloves on the field."

If the Dodgers had dusted off the Giants, as anticipated, Leland Stanford MacPhail would not only have had to enlarge Ebbets Field for the world's series, but also to make room for his high-salaried slaves' heads. However, everything returned to normal yesterday. The Dodgers were actually ridiculed by 16,000 raucous, if chagrined, rooters—and that's the first broad hint that the lusty, old days are back.

There's nothing chronically wrong with Larry's MacPhailures. It's too classy a ball club to continue to play the brand of baseball it has played to date. Walter Kirby Higbee, the fabulous fireballer, making his debut before the Canarsie clientele, must have thought he was back pitching for the Phillies yesterday. FOUR HIGH SCHOOL BANDS TO PARADE, OFFER CONCERT IN CIRCLEVILLE

MORE THAN 200 YOUTHS TO TAKE PART IN EVENT

Procession To Move Friday At 3 O'clock; Evening Program Is At 8

PROF. NEWCOMB CONDUCTS

New Uniforms And Stirring Music To Help Make Festival Pleasing

The holiday atmosphere will prevail in Circleville Friday afternoon and evening when the Central Ohio High School Band Association, comprising musical organizations from four schools, stages a parade in the business district at 3 o'clock and offers a massed concert in Memorial Hall at 8 o'clock.

Bands participating will include Circleville's under direction of C. Z. Zaenglein; Lancaster, Mount Vernon and Upper Arlington, the latter school being host a week later to the second of the spring concerts prepared by the Association.

Mr. Zaenglein, who is general chairman of the event, expects upward of 200 youthful musicians to participate. "The event should be an outstanding one from every angle," the instructor said. "Several of the bands have new uniforms, all have been working diligently for the occasion, and Professor Manley Whitcomb of Ohio State University, who will be our guest conductor, is rated as one of the best available."

Professor Whitcomb is instructor of the symphonic bands at Ohio State University. All residents of Circleville and Pickaway County are invited to witness the colorful parade in the afternoon, and attend the concert in the evening. The parade will cover the entire business district, providing the weather is suitable.

The program for the concert in the evening follows: America; March, "March of the Brave"—Zamecnik; Overture, "Eroica"—Skornica; Special number by Circleville; March, "Billboard"—Klohr; Waltz, "Esperanza"—Waldteufel; Special

FISHING TACKLE THIEF INVITED TO TAKE FOUR HOOKS LEFT IN GARAGE

Someone broke into the garage of W. M. Reid, 141 East Union Street, a few days ago and stole all of his fishing tackle, including bait, poles and tackle box, but the intruder overlooked four hooks which were not with the rest of the fishing equipment.

Mr. Reid, a city councilman, has nailed a sign on his garage door which says "You forgot four hooks. You might as well come back and get them, because they won't do me any good without the poles."

WATER SERVICE ASKED BY GROUP

South Pickaway Street Folk Must Carry Supply From Town Street

A delegation of South Pickaway residents appeared before Council Wednesday night asking that water service be extended into their neighborhood. All wells along South Pickaway are dry and drinking water must be carried from Town Street, the representatives said.

Council passed a resolution authorizing the installation of water lines on South Pickaway from Town Street south to the corporation line, with two fire hydrants to be connected with the lines.

With residents of Clinton Street and Weldon Avenue also asking for water, Council referred the matter to its service committee with the power to act as soon as grades could be established on the two streets.

No music is rendered during service in a mosque. The chaplain reads the service and members of the congregation participate.

ELEVEN TO COMPETE IN COUNTY ORATORICAL TEST

Eleven pupils from Pickaway County schools will present orations Friday night at the county Oratorical Contest in Atlanta high school auditorium.

The program will begin at eight o'clock with the Rev. V. C. Stump, New Holland Methodist Church, delivering the invocation.

Musical selections will be furnished by pupils of Atlanta and Williamsport schools. Judges will announce the results of the contest at the close of the program.

FOUR HIGH SCHOOL BANDS TO PARADE, OFFER CONCERT IN CIRCLEVILLE

Procession To Move Friday At 3 O'clock; Evening Program Is At 8

PROF. NEWCOMB CONDUCTS

New Uniforms And Stirring Music To Help Make Festival Pleasing

The holiday atmosphere will prevail in Circleville Friday afternoon and evening when the Central Ohio High School Band Association, comprising musical organizations from four schools, stages a parade in the business district at 3 o'clock and offers a massed concert in Memorial Hall at 8 o'clock.

Bands participating will include Circleville's under direction of C. Z. Zaenglein; Lancaster, Mount Vernon and Upper Arlington, the latter school being host a week later to the second of the spring concerts prepared by the Association.

Mr. Zaenglein, who is general chairman of the event, expects upward of 200 youthful musicians to participate. "The event should be an outstanding one from every angle," the instructor said. "Several of the bands have new uniforms, all have been working diligently for the occasion, and Professor Manley Whitcomb of Ohio State University, who will be our guest conductor, is rated as one of the best available."

Professor Whitcomb is instructor of the symphonic bands at Ohio State University.

All residents of Circleville and Pickaway County are invited to witness the colorful parade in the afternoon, and attend the concert in the evening. The parade will cover the entire business district, providing the weather is suitable.

The program for the concert in the evening follows:

America; March, "March of the Brave" — Zamecnik; Overture, "Eroica" — Skornica; Special number by Circleville; March, "Billboard" — Kiohr; Waltz, "Es-pana" — Waldteufel; Special number by Upper Arlington; March, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" — Jessel.

May Queen

STUDENTS at Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa., have elected Miss Betty Jane Hornstein of Aliquippa, Pa., as "May Queen" for their annual "May Day" ceremonies, May 23. Eight other co-eds were elected as her attendants.

Overture, "The New Moon" — Romberg; Special number by Mt. Vernon; March, "On the Mall" — Goldman; Overture, "Rival" — Pettee; Special number by Lancaster; and God Bless America.

Someone broke into the garage of W. M. Reid, 141 East Union Street, a few days ago and stole all of his fishing tackle, including bait, poles and tackle box, but the intruder overlooked four hooks which were not with the rest of the fishing equipment.

Mr. Reid, a city councilman, has nailed a sign on his garage door which says "You forgot four hooks. You might as well come back and get them, because they won't do me any good without the poles."

WATER SERVICE ASKED BY GROUP

South Pickaway Street Folk Must Carry Supply From Town Street

A delegation of South Pickaway residents appeared before Council Wednesday night asking that water service be extended into their neighborhood. All wells along South Pickaway are dry and drinking water must be carried from Town Street, the representatives said.

Council passed a resolution authorizing the installation of water lines on South Pickaway from Town Street south to the corporation line, with two fire hydrants to be connected with the lines.

With residents of Clinton Street and Weldon Avenue also asking for water, Council referred the matter to its service committee with the power to act as soon as grades could be established on the two streets.

ELEVEN TO COMPETE IN COUNTY ORATORICAL TEST

Eleven pupils from Pickaway County schools will present orations Friday night at the county Oratorical Contest in Atlanta high school auditorium.

The program will begin at eight o'clock with the Rev. V. C. Stump, New Holland Methodist Church, delivering the invocation.

Musical selections will be furnished by pupils of Atlanta and Williamsport schools. Judges will announce the results of the contest at the close of the program.
